Peachtree Farmer Triples Corn Yield in 5-Year Period

Lawson Lunsford, unit demonstration farmer in Peachtree section of Cherokee county, has shown a remarkable increase in corn production on his land, according to a recent report of D. C. Snodgrass, assistant county agent.

A systematic rotation in use of lime and legumes and Phosphates, is responsible for the increase according to Mr. Lunsford, who reports an increase from 20 bushels of corn on nine acres in the 1925 crop to 60 bushels on the same land for the 1940 crop. This fall he gathered a total of 342 bushels of corn from the nine acres.

A good program of speaking, and music will be presented, and refreshments will be served. All members of the various camps are urged to attend.

Farm Youths Attend National Club Event

North Carolina will send a group of outstanding farm youths to the National 4-H Club Congress, which opens in Chicago December 1 and lasts through December 7, announce L. P. Harrill, State 4-H Club leader and Miss Frances MacGregor, assistant leader, both of State College.

The delegates selected to make the trip are: Hester Roberts, Robeson County; Willie Mae Daniel, Granville County; Lena Pressley, Jackson County; Edna Jones, Anson County; Pat Graham, Cumberland County; Mary Frances Grier, Mecklenburg County; and Vernon Duncan, Chatham County. All were picked on the basis of good club work and outstanding achievement in one particular subject.

In addition to these delegates, North Carolina will be represented by two judging teams from Lincoln County. A girls' poultry judging team will be composed of Doris Beam, Mabel Leonard, Inez Reep and Christine Griggs. A boys' crop judging team is made up of Ervin Reep, John Parker, and Louis Reep.

Miss MacGregor will be in charge of the North Carolina delegation and will be assisted by Miss Julla McIver, assistant clothing specialist. Other extension leaders to attend from North Carolina will be Miss Anne Benson Priest, home agent of Lincoln County, and John Webster, assistant Lincoln County farm agent. At the Chicago Congress, Hester Roberts will compete in the National dress review, and Mary Frances Grier and Vernon Duncan will enter the National health contest. The three State winners.

Records of the remainder have already been submitted to the Congress officials and winners will be announced after the event opens.

J. E. Shields to Open New Hosiery Mill Here

A new hosiery mill will begin operation in Murphy not later than January 1. It will be located in the new brick building, recently constructed on Hiwassee street near Shields Tourist cabins, across the Hiwassee river, and will be operated by J. E. Shields.

The new mill operator, who has been plant manager for "Beau" Brumby ever since the latter came to Murphy, says he will start with about 15 operators, and that this number probably will soon be increased.

No operators will be hired from Mr. Brumby. Instead, beginners will be taken on, and trained.

Eight Men . . .

son was that she, Workman, Snodgrass, Schooley and McCarthy were in the Workman home, preparing to eat an oyster supper when Thrasher opened the front door pointed a shot-gun at Workman, and ordered him to come outside.

She says Workman arose and went to the door, and that she went with him, trying to pull him back. She says Schooley and the other men in the house followed.

Outside the house, Mrs. Ray said, Thrasher told Workman: "I ain't got nothing against you." She says he then pointed to Schooley, and declared: "That's the man we're after."

With these words, Mrs. Ray says, Thrasher handed the gun to a man she believed to be Stiles and shook hands with Workman. There was a lot of argument, she said and finally Schooley declared: "I ain't got no gun, but I'll fight you fair," and started taking off his coat.

The next instance, she said there was a shot. The charge nearly headed Workman, and tearing through his throat, struck the woman in the face.

Thrasher told Sheriff Townson the trouble started during the afternoon, when he was passing the Workman house, and Schooley and Workman hailed him. He says the two came up to him, and Schooley said "You tar heels think you're running things around here; but I'm going to show you different if you pass this house again you're going to get a good beating."

Thrasher says he had a rifle with him at the time, but that Schooley was drinking and that he, Thrasher, "didn't want to kill anybody" Later he said, he did not like being forbidden to use the highway, and decided he would go back and "see about it."

Thrasher says he went to the home of a kinsman of Andy Stiles, told of his trouble, and asked the man there to go back with him, but the latter refused. He says he did not go near the home of Andy Stiles, but later was joined by Wiggins and Stewart, who went to the Workman house with him.

Thrasher denies he had a shot-gun. He admits somebody in his party had one, but says he can't remember who. He insists he does not know who fired the shot.

The eye-witnesses, who had been in the house with Workman, say they were so scared they don't don't know who did the shooting. Two of them—Snodgrass and McCarthy, say they ran to the back of the house before the fatal shot was fired.

Timely Farm Questions

QUESTION: Can I use peanut meal in the laying mash for my hens?

ANSWER: Yes. Recent research by the North Carolina Experiment Station shows that high grade peanut meal may be used in replacing 50 percent of the more expensive animal protein concentrates now in general use in laying mash. Roy S. Dearstyne, head poultryman at State College, replacing 50 to 94 percent of the animal proteins with peanut meal in two series of experiments where he used the North Carolina laying mash as recommended by the poultry department. There was no reduction in egg production, in the hatchability of the eggs nor in the livability of the chicks so hatched.

B.N.C.B.D.C. Meeting Will Be Held in Raleigh

Raleigh—The executive committee of the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors committee will meet in Raleigh, December 12, to map the beer industry's "clean up" campaign in this state. Edgar H. Bain, state director, will make the principal address.

The clean up campaign, which was launched in May, 1939, has resulted in the elimination of 135 undesirable beer outlets.

unfair. "It already has been pointed out that a plant could be built at Andrews before the Fontana Dam is completed. If they insist on taking the plant elsewhere, we can't stop them—but at least let's see to it that they don't rob us of our natural resources to operate it."

"Every voter in this section should write, or wire, Congressman Weaver, and Senators Bailey and Reynolds, demanding that they do something."

Job to Reopen . . .

International tunnel workers union, E. E. McDaniel, and Jack Barnes, representing the international electrical workers; and several local union officials connected with the Nantahala project. R. E. Lee formerly union manager at the project, was not present. He is reported to have promised, following a battle with a group of unemployed who first threw him in the river and then beat him severely, that if he were allowed to leave, he would "not come back."

All this week conditions have been quiet in connection with the project, the unemployed following a policy of "watchful waiting." Many wild reports were circulated, one of them being that the body of a man had been recovered from the Nantahala river Monday, at the Beechertown section of the job. County officers from both Cherokee and Macon, and also State highway patrolmen all deny knowledge of any such occurrence.
