Fire Wood Is Needed For Winter of 41-42

Indications point to higher coal prices for the winter of 1941-42, R W. Graber, Extension forester of N. C. State College, suggests to farmers that they prepare now for extensive fuelwood cuttings this winter.

Even if labor is available to mine sufficient quantities of coal for domestic purpose, it is questionable whether transportation facilities will be available," Graeper declared, and he added, "this situation is bound to create a greater demand for wood

The forester pointed out that the empanded fuel wood market should castle many farmers to dispose of low-grade hardwood trees not suited to lumber or other commercial pur-The earlier the start is made in ming, the more nearly the wood seasoned when the demand becomes active. Graeber stated.

Dispite the advantages of increasdemand for wood, the Extension logan should be 'Don't Strip the Land," he said, "A good cutting | would be: Cut the poorer; such as scarlet oak, blackjack oak, seurwood, black gum, hornbeam, etc. Cut crippled, crowded, or use of tree tops left from recent sawmill operations."

Graeber said it is a good idea not to cut more than one-fourth of the walks, on store windows and billtotal volume of timber in any one area of average hardwood stands. ill give a profitable harvest. and at the same time maintain an adequate stand of growing stock.

> In one week in July, more than 6,000 French men and women were thrown in their community bastiles charged with scrawling this vengeful symbol wherever they could. Increasingly it is used, for example, in Morse-code form-three light tans and one heavy-when knocking on a heighbor's door; or again in concerted applause at movies and plays. The so-called "illegal" radio in various European countries use it now as a call signal or station identification.

Responsibility for its spread is difficult for the Gestapo police to trace. All they can do, in futile exasperation, is to execute mass arrests. That takes time, and only serves to encourage the spreadof the "Victory symbol and to encourage hope and determination, throughout conqured

COUNSELING SKY-PILOT ANTHONY

THE MOUNTAINS ARE CALLING!

Six years ago I drove over the Great Smoky Mountains for the first ime. As we drove up, up, up, to 5500 feet above sea level, we drew our coats about us, though it was a hot day in August down in the valley below. We parked our car at New Found Gap. As we stood on the crest we looked to the east and saw North Carolina. We turned to the west and looked far into Tennessee. All about us were the hemlocks and rhododenron. Trees and flowers of countless varieties added to our wonder and awe, as we stood so near heaven.

There is something fascinating about mountains. They cause one to look up. To one born in the Blue Ridge Mountains, there is a challenge to every towering peak. To one born in the city or on the plain, there is a thrilling freshness, a quiet adventure, a peaceful atmosphere of calm which brings one nearer to the Great Artist, the Creator of all beauty.

There is friendship among the people of the mountains. Of course friends are dear wherever you find them. One's friends in the mountains will never be forgotten. There is Uncle Bud Hixon in Sequatchi Valley Tenn. One summer a young "Preacher Boy" from college came to his home to make his headquarters for the summer. Uncle Bud was ill, but he told his son, "Let the preacher come anyway." The young preacher took a train for his new parish of three churches, out in "God's Out, of Doors." The train pulled in to the station about dark. Uncle Bud's married son was there to meet the train. He took the new preacher in his car as they rode he said. "Pappy is worse. We want you to get some rest, so we have arranged for you to stay with Mr. Smith." Mr. Smith was awake. He got up out of bed and lit the oil lamp. After a short but friendly conversation he showed the guest to his room. The night passed hurridly as the refreshing and cool air breezed through the open windows. The next morning the "Boy Preacher" walked out on the porch and beheld the glory of the morning sun as it set its shining light over the world. The call for breakfast was given. There was an inexplicable silence and spirit of hesitancy. Not all the family came to the table at first. After grace was said, some one cess that makes car- Kellog's Corn Flakes, 2 pkgs 15c morning at three o'clock." At the funeral the next day, one of the members of the family said, "You are to spend the summer with us just the same.

The mountains causes one to remember a figted young Christain girl who know that "The Miracle" had happened. She experienced a certain joy and happiness as she lived for the Master. One day the Minister and his wife took her on a short trip among the mountains. There they went over the vows of the church in preparation for the reception service the following Sunday. Today she is a nurse of inspiring character.

The mountains, like friends, are calling, "Look Up! Come Up! Yours for life at its best Sky-Pilot Anthony.
