

Distinguished Washingtonian Spending Vacation In Murphy

Murphy has a distinguished summer visitor, Mrs. H. J. English of Washington, D. E. who is spending part of the summer with her sister, Mrs. J. N. Moody.

Mrs. English, who is a native of Asheville, spends almost every summer in North Carolina, at Murphy, Asheville and Winston-Salem.

At present occupying herself with social service work in Washington, Mrs. English has also distinguished herself in political circle of the nation's capital. She is closely associated with this state's representatives in congress and is often a guest of the country's First Lady at the Whitehouse.

Cited for much outstanding work, she was particularly praised for work with the Absentee Voting bureau in Washington during the recent presidential campaign.

She is at present very active in the work of the United Service organization, and is seeking to serve more closely in the morale division of the country's armed forces, if possible directly in the camps. She has a son, Henry English, now serving as an officer in the U. S. Navy.

She has the distinction of having been the first woman to conduct an election in the city of Asheville. Having lived in Colorado for a number of years, she also was privileged with voting before that opportunity came to North Carolina women.

Her hobby is the study and development of minerals and she has been instrumental in dispatching numerous noted mineralogists to this section in an effort to develop its mineral resources.

When a Child Needs a Laxative!

SYRUP OF BLACK-DRAUGHT is a tasty liquid that most children will welcome whenever they need a laxative. What's more important, it has the same main ingredient as BLACK-DRAUGHT, its older companion. Perhaps that's why it usually gives a child such refreshing relief from the familiar symptoms which show a laxative is needed. Comes in two sizes: 25c-50c.

Cotton Stockings Perfected By U. S. For All Occasions

More than 150 different designs of cotton stockings are now available to the hosiery industry, according to an announcement by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Activity by the textile specialists is due to silk shortage.

Several of the new designs have been accepted by mills and are now in production, the government announced, and prediction was made that more designs will be in use in the near future.

David H. Young, textile technologist for the Department of Agriculture, has developed full-fashioned designs for cotton designs suitable to every occasion. These vary from cotton web mesh, for evening wear, to plain knits in various weights for sports wear and around the house or garden.

Young's designs are produced on a full-fashioned knitting machine at the research center of the Department of Agriculture, and undergo severe tests both in the laboratory and "in the field" for wearability, washability and appearance. Young predicts that their comparative freedom from a tendency to snag or run will make them popular. He adds that they will be of lovely appearance, and will find especial favor with the "men folks" because they will be considerably cheaper to buy, and will last many times longer than silk.

Mill owners will not be able to boost prices of the new cotton designs on the claim that it was necessary to install expensive new equipment. A government survey shows there are 16,200 full-fashioned knitting machines in the U. S. and that 89 per cent of them are suitable for knitting cotton. Only 48 per cent, however, can handle Nylon rayon—which accounts for the difficulties, and high prices met in getting stockings of that material.

Last year American women purchased more than 43 million dozen pairs of full fashioned hosiery. If these were all made from cotton it is estimated that nearly 300,000 bales would be required. Long staple cotton is best suited for stockings. It is grown in South Carolina, Arizona, Florida and the Mississippi Delta.

Maude Radford, president, Mrs. Ben Mann, secretary, and Mrs. Gilbert Stiles, Treasurer.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.
