

Funeral Rites For Soldiers On Foreign Soil Are Same As At Home

Except when combat interferes, funeral rites for American soldiers who fall on foreign soil are approximately the same, including military honors, as those conducted in the United States. Headquarters, Fourth Service Command has announced.

A unit of the Graves Registration Service, which is under the supervision of the Quartermaster Corps, operates closely behind the combat area, burying the dead, recording and marking the graves and collecting personal effects.

When isolated graves are necessary, sketches and maps of the location are made as a part of the permanent record. When identification tags are lost, Graves Registration officers make every effort to establish the soldier's identity through personal papers, dental work and fingerprints.

Complete records are kept of all burials, including the name, serial number, grade, organization, place and cause and date of birth. When burial occurs in established cemeteries, the name of the cemetery, row and plot number are added to the permanent record. When available the emergency address of the deceased in the report along with fingerprints and a list of personal effects.

Personal effects collected on a battle field are forwarded to the Army Effects Bureau, Quartermaster Depot, Kansas City, Mo., where they may be obtained by the decedent's next of kin after proper identification.

Hints On Preserving Food

One slice of bread molds, one carrot shrivels—multiply that by the Nation's 34 million homes. Fight food waste on the home front.

Store to save. Find out how each food keeps best, and store each article in the right, and correctly cared for, cupboard, cooler, can, or jar.

Keep bread and cake in ventilated containers, scalded, sunned and aired once a week.

The three C's for meat conservation: Clean; Cold; Covered.

Cover fresh meat loosely. Wipe with damp cloth just before cooking. If ground, store in extra cool place and cook soon.

Fish and other sea foods spoil in a few hours at room temperature. Cook at once, or wrap in wax paper to keep odor from other food, and store very cold.

Don't wash eggs before storing. Water destroys the protective film that keeps out air and odors. Wipe eggs off with dry, rough cloth. Store eggs in open bowl or wire basket in a cool place.

The fresher a vegetable when it is used, the better the taste, the less the waste, and the more vitamins retained.

To hold the sweet in corn, peas, and lima beans and to keep snap beans fresh, keep them cold. Let them stay in the pod or husk unless you can store them tightly covered in refrigerator.

Cauliflower, brussels sprouts, and broccoli lose freshness faster than cabbage. Leave them uncut; keep cold and not too dry.

To keep berries, cherries, and grapes tippop, store in a shallow tray in a cold place. Wash just before using.

The natural sugar in dried fruits keeps them from molding easily. Store them in a tight bag or jar in a cool place. Watch in warm weather for worms or weevils.

Crisp cookies and crackers soften if kept with bread and cake. Keep them in airtight tins or boxes all their own.

Victory Garden Hints

A fertile, well-drained site is essential.

Prepare a good seedbed as soon as soil is dry.

Order the leading varieties recommended by your local authorities or seedsmen, but don't be too choosy as seed of some varieties is scarce.

Plant standard, adapted varieties.

Water in dry seasons if possible.

Don't waste seeds by planting too thinly. Neither should you buy more seed than you need. In the case of such things as onions and tomatoes, it will pay to buy sets or plants.

Kill weeds as soon as they appear.

Thin young plants early and promptly.

Fertilizer well but with care.

Spray or dust promptly to control insects and diseases.

Harvest and use crops when young and tender.

Plant in succession for an all-season garden.

Don't waste space on freak novelties.

Can and store all surpluses—don't waste food.

This year it is either grow it or do without.

A half hour a day should be sufficient for the average family size garden, after the garden has been planted.

You must have at least six hours of direct sunlight for vegetables.

Plant a border of showy annuals along the edge of your garden.

Davis Urges An Increase In Farm Planting Acreage

The following wire quoting statement of the Administrator on food production has just come in:

Chester Davis issuing following statement for release on April 28:

"This is the most important planting season in American farm history. We can still increase the number of acres we plant. In a very few days it will be too late. The War Food Administrator is asking the farmers to plant to the limit for critical war crops, food crops, and feed for livestock. In the drive that has been made to increase the acreage on beans, potatoes, and oil crops, there was no intention to minimize the important of other essential crops. Expanded production also of feed grains and hay is vitally necessary if we are to continue our record heavy production of livestock and livestock products. The War Food Administration is organizing the country's latent labor resources to help with the harvests this year. Acting with manufacturers and with other agencies of Government, we will do our best to see that more harvesting machinery is ready by the time it is needed. We will work for continuing price supports at fair levels in order to minimize risks in the market place. We ask farmers, on their part, in the days that remain of spring planting to take an extra degree of change this year for their country—to plant in full the acreages they can expect to handle under the most favorable circumstances."

Farmers To Report On AAA Compliance

In an effort to reduce travel and use of manpower, farmers of Cherokee County this year will report their own compliance with provisions of the 1943 AAA program, it was announced today by J. H. Hampton, chairman of the County AAA Committee.

"Under this plan, which may be called an honor system, we hope to save money, travel, tires, gasoline and the time of persons who otherwise probably would be engaged in agricultural production," Chairman Hampton said. "This plan is being put into effect over the entire nation this year, and we in Cherokee County certainly can meet up to standards of farmers in any other county."

Under this program he said each farmer will measure his acreage and will report it to his County AAA Office on forms to be provided by the office. Farmers also will report acreages of crops grown for soil-building purposes and for which there is a payment made under the AAA program. Marketing quotas will be in effect this year only on cotton and tobacco, Mr. Hampton said, but war crops, such as peanuts, soybeans, and sweet potatoes for market must be measured and reported for the purpose of determining if goals were met. Commercial truck crops and Irish potatoes for market also must be reported for the purpose of determining incentive payments.

Hanes Backs Up Local Merchants With New Campaign

This year merchants and manufacturer alike face many new difficulties. To help ease some of these problems, the P. H. Hanes Knitting Company, of Winston-Salem, is continuing the broad advertising program they have followed for 31 consecutive years.

Appearing in this newspaper and in 609 other newspapers throughout the nation, the 1943 Hanes newspaper campaign is the largest in the underwear field.

Over the years, Hanes has found that newspaper advertising is an excellent means of telling the story of their products to the American people. It reaches them directly and quickly. In normal times sales are often made on the day the advertisement appears.

The 1943 Hanes advertisements are planned to serve three purposes:

They will be interesting to millions of men and women who have sons, and other relatives and friends in the Service. For they illustrate and describe the uniforms of men in various branches of the Service—tell how they are designed, down to the underwear, for comfort and fighting efficiency.

These messages will also help to win friends for Hanes merchants by reminding readers of the styling, comfort and long service they get from Hanes Underwear.

Mention is also made of the fact that much of Hanes production is going to the Armed Forces.

This will help consumers and dealers to understand why the supply of Hanes Underwear may be limited this Spring.

Some women resign themselves to the drudgery of dishwashing and keep their minds occupied with other things. Other women make the job fast and easy with a well-planned sink-center, plenty of soap and hot water, and a good dish drainer. Take your choice.

Mothers Today!

Because they are the unsung heroines of this war, LET's make Mother's Day, May 9, one they will long remember. Because of the look of hope in her eye, because of her smiling courage, your mother this year is truly the 'Lady of the Hour'. Let her know how proud you are of the job she is doing. Remember to tell her . . . that you, like all Americans everywhere, deeply appreciate the letters of hope she sends, the hours of labor she spends in Red Cross work, the faith she has in you and all the others who are all-out to win the war. Tell her so with a gift, a visit, a letter, a phone call. Give her something special inscribed "To Mother—with Love".

Make Mother's Day May 9, 1943, a day your Mother will always remember—Lighten Mother's daily burdens and make every day "Mother's Day" through the increased use of the modern labor-saver . . .
