Who Loses if Gremlins paint the postwar railroad picture?

You lose—even in normal times—without efficient railroads. So does "the butcher, baker and candlestick maker," the farmer, merchant, industrialist, and every other person adversely affected by poor transportation service, slack employment, meagre payrolls and slim purchases.

Everybody loses during wartime—if the railroads are handicapped. Had railroads and railroad men not been equal to the tremendous tasks the war imposed, freedom itself might have been in greater jeopardy.

The Old Reliable L&N, a product of Free Enterprise, privately owned and operated, and directed by men who love the South and its traditions, has for 94 years turned its energies to developing its territory—commercially, industrially and culturally. By its fruits ye should judge it.

For the future the L&N asks nothing more than fair and equal treatment as to laws, regulations and subsidies. It has no more earnest purpose than to serve acceptably and to advance the welfare of its communities—for therein lies its own well-being.
