

Kyle D. Crowther Begins His Third Year Overseas

Friends of Sergeant Kyle D. Crowther, Jr., 332 E. Scott Avenue, Knoxville, Tennessee, will be glad to hear that he has begun his third year of overseas service in continued health and good spirits. The unit with which the Sergeant came overseas in September, 1942, after having served in England and Africa, is at present stationed in Southern Italy.

After enlisting in January, 1942, Sgt. Crowther was trained as an airplane mechanic at Parks Air College in East St. Louis, Mo., where he stayed for four months. Assigned to an Air Service Command unit, Crowther was sent to an airport near Macon, Ga. for four months before his outfit left for its overseas station. After a three-month stay in England, Crowther arrived with his unit at a large North African air base, where he stayed for twenty-one months. During this time, Sgt. Crowther worked at first as an airplane mechanic and later in the operations office of the field, which is concerned with the regulation of all flights. Working at this job at all hours of the day and night, at a time when his field was carrying the heavy aerial traffic connected with the Tunisian campaign and the Sicilian landings, Sgt. Crowther distinguished himself by his steadiness and accurate judgment.

Before his entry into the service, Sgt. Crowther completed two years of study at the University of Tennessee, where he made Transportation his major interest. A member of the Sigma Nu fraternity, Crowther was a popular cheerleader for the two years of his stay at the University. The Sergeant has hopes of completing his education after the war, but his plans for beginning home life with his wife, Mrs. Sarah J. V. Crowther, of Murphy, North Carolina, have priority.

Sgt. Crowther's brother, Corporal William J. Crowther, is also overseas, serving with an anti-aircraft artillery unit. He has seen service in all the campaigns of the European conflict, being at present in France.

Akin Is Cited For Outstanding Performance Duty

An Eighth Air Force Liberator Station, England — The B-24 Liberator Bomber squadron in which Cpl. Jack B. Akin of Dillard Street, Murphy, North Carolina, is an Airplane Mechanic recently was cited "for distinguished and outstanding performance of duty from May 12 to July 18" by Major General William E. Kepner, 2nd Bombardment Division commander.

During this period without loss of aircraft or crew the squadron commanded by Major Herman A. Laubrich of Green Bay, Wisconsin, "in the face of intense anti-aircraft fire and formidable enemy fighter opposition" bombed 20 targets in Germany and 34 targets in enemy occupied Europe. The squadron was further cited for its "tenacity of purpose, efficiency, determination and devotion to duty."

In addition to marking up the exceptional record of 54 missions without loss, the squadron during this period led all other squadrons of its Liberator group in the number of heavy bombers dispatched into battle.

The Group, commanded by Colonel Luther J. Fairbanks of Burt, Iowa, has itself been praised for combat performance. After its first mission, an attack against Berlin, the group was officially commended by Lieutenant General James H. Doolittle, commanding Eighth Air Force, for bombing achievement. It was the longest initial mission ever flown by any unit in the history of the European Theater and one of the heaviest daylight bombardments of the German capital on record.
