Four From This Area Fight With Regiment That Never Retreated

With The Fifth Army, Italy — Pfc. Hugh H. Jones, mortar gunner, Andrews; Cpl. Garland W. Ledford, truck driver, Hayesville; T. Sgt. Clint Anderson, platoon sergeant, Shooting Creek; and Pfc. Leonard M. Donald, ammo handler, Unaka are fighting in Italy with the 361st Infantry Regiment, which spearheaded the advance of Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army from Velletri to the Arno River without having once given ground.

The 361st is part of the 91st "Powder River" Division, currently in the Florence-Bologna drive. The regiment landed in Italy last May 31; in two days moved into the line and fought its first battle just north of Velletri while attached to the 36th "Texas" Division. The 361st was one of the units that took the Albano Hills and Lake Albano making possible the fall of Rome.

By passing Rome, the regiment continued to advance north on Highway 1 and participated in the capture of Tarquinia, which fell June 8, and Montalto, 10 miles farther north, which fell on the following day. The 361st then went on to defeat the Germans at Magliano and capture the key terrain feature of Poggio di Moscano on June 17.

The outfit next won a signal victory at Ponte d'Istria, where the unit captured more than 200 Germans. One company of the 361st had crossed the Ombrone River and entered the town; two other companies had flanked the village. A German force counter-attacked in the town and was taken by surprise by the flank companies.

The regiment advanced further to take Paganico, Roccastrada, Radicondoli and Casole D'Elsa. It was pulled out of the line for a rest July 4. Rejoining the 91st Division, the 361st attacked again July 16 east of Cecina. It then moved through Orvieto, Ponsacco and Pontedera and was the first in Italy to reach the Arno River July 17.

Colonel R. W. Broedlow of Medford, Oregon, veteran of 28 years' service, commands the 361st. He has seen action on the Mexican border and in the first World War and served also in the Philippines Bowden Mills of Kingsport, Tenn.

Frank Taylor Is Recovering In England

The 83rd General Hospital, England — Wounded in the left hand by a machine gun bullet in the fighting along the Moselle river in Eastern France, Private Frank H. Taylor, 29, of Murphy, North Carolina, is recovering at this United States Army general hospital in England.

Pvt. Taylor is "recovering satisfactorily and is up and around the hospital," according to his ward surgeon, Captain Gordon Healy of Webby City, Missouri.

The Murphy infantry rifleman told of his unit crawling across open country to quiet a machine-gun nest. "As we inched our way forward, a German sniper whom we had passed, picked off four of our column," he said. "I concentrated on the sniper and saw my first bullet kick up the dirt in front of him. My second shot hit him as he attempted to crawl back to the cover of the woods in which the machine-gun nest was hidden. I had got to one knee to fire when the machine-gun burst knocked the gun out of my hand and wounded me. I hit the ground and crawled back 200 yards before I could get on my feet and continue to the aid station."

Colonel F. G. Norbury of Jacksonville, Illinois, commanding officer of the hospital said, "Pvt. Taylor is assured the finest treatment here in our hospital. Standards of treatment and care are as high as those practiced by the large metropolitan hospitals in the United States."

The Taylor Infantryman was formerly employed by Raeland Brothers Wholesale Co. of Murphy. His wife, Mrs. Gladys Taylor, and children, Furman, Harold and Ellen reside in Murphy.

His Idea Builds Assault Ships Faster

You'd have to be a welder to appreciate the welding machine improvement that Jesse S. Sohn thought up in a U. S. Steel shipyard. But it's a welding device that helps turn out LST's there faster than ever. "Suggestion Boxes" in U. S. Steel plants encourage new ideas among workers and help them win suitable rewards and promotions. New ideas by ingenious, enthusiastic workers helped raise production of U. S. Steel products to an all-time high during the major part of 1944.
