Cotton Bags Make Useful Garments

By VERNA STANTON
Assistant State Agent

Almost every rural housewife is cotton bag-conscious, but chances are that very few have realized the full potentialities of the material. For many years bags have entered the house as dish cloths, curtains, and slip covers, but now they are being looked upon as dresses' in the making.

An unlimited number of items for yourself, your home, and your children can be made from this sack material. The white bags can be left plain, or dyed any color and several print bags in the same pattern will make a dress. Boys' sport and dress shirts can also be made from this material.

Besides wearing apparel, numerous other useful and attractive items can be made from bags—all kinds of aprons from the necessary overall type to dainty tea-aprons of print trimmed with deep ruffles of white or pastel-dyed material; luncheon cloths, napkins, and table mats provide unlimited possibilities.

Let the daughters try their hands at making some of their own clothes using the bag material. They are especially good for attractive school dresses. "Never let a good opportunity go untried," is a good rule to follow, and certainly discarding cotton bags would be like throwing away good bolts of material. Washed thoroughly, dyed, and made into any of hundreds of possible items, cotton feed bags become indispensable around the home.

When shopping for dress-making fabrics, don't overlook the remnant tables. Those short lengths of expensive fabrics make collars and cuffs for a dress of less expensive black fabric. Under-suit blouses are made from short lengths of fabric and some remnants contain sufficient material to line jackets or children's coats.

When powder puffs become really old and frayed, they can still be useful after being washed. Use an old puff, instead of a cloth, to polish silver. For fitting a dress or measuring a hem, attach one on your wrist with a rubber band and use as a pin cushion.
