Rev. H. H. Hyde Is Taken By Death

ANDREWS — The Rev. H. H. Hyde, 85, dean of Baptist ministers in this section of Western North Carolina, died Sunday at his home here.

Funeral services for the retired minister were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Andrews Baptist church, with the Rev. T. Earle Ogg, local pastor, and the Rev. L. P. Smith of Hayesville and the Rev. Thad Deitz of Sylva, former pastors officiating.

Mr. Hyde was twice mayor of Bryson city and twice mayor of Andrews. He was a native of Swain county, as is the widow, the former Miss Emily Lindsey, but had made his home here for more than 30 years. After retiring from the ministry, he served for years as a justice of the peace. During his ministry he is said to have baptized more than a thousand persons.

Surviving are the widow, to whom he had been married 66 years; six children, Miss Ellen Hyde of Andrews, Mrs. Laura Constant of Waynesville, Mrs. Estelle Allison of Dellwood, J. B. and H. G. of Asheville and W. A. of Andrews.

Forsyth funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

"Train Room" Is Hobby Of Rev. J. C. Lime

ANDREWS—Rev. J. C. Lime, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, knows a boy's fancy as well as the way to his heart.

Mr. Lime has a room in the manse which might well be called the "train room". In this room he has a maze of electric train tracks, some elevated and others on the level. When he pulls switches, lights begin to flash, and the trains begin to move in various directions. His railway lines are complete with stations, bridges, and mountainous scenery.

Mr. Lime, the father of two girls, has no boy. However, he is the local Boy Scout master. Mr. Lime's "train room" is practically public property, he being only something of a custodian and mechanic to keep the system in working order. Various groups from the local grade school have been down to the manse to enjoy the trains. Even a visit from pupils in the Negro school has been made.

Mr. Lime started with his trains eight years ago, and finding it very popular with children he has continued with the hobby from year to year until he now has a set-up that is the envy of many hereabouts.
