PAUL GREEN'S SYMPHONIC DRAMA "THE LOST COLONY" OPENS — MANTEO—These are scenes from The Lost Colony, Paul Green's internationally famous symphonic drama built up around the greatest mystery of all history. The ninth season opening of the show, which had its premiere in 1937, was on Saturday night, July 2, in the Waterside Theatre at Fort near Manteo on Roanoke Island. There will be shows nightly, five days each week, Wednesday through Sunday. There will be no performances on Monday and Tuesday of each week. There have been a few changes made in the script. A new scene has been added in Act II, one which shows relatives of the colonists, praying for their safety on the high sea which they are sailing across to establish a settlement in the New World.

A dramatic innovation this year will be The Lost Colony Chorus, under direction of Theos Cronk leaving the choir stall to become singing actors on the stage in certain scenes. Some of the familiar scenes of the famous production are shown here. At top the picture shows the gala and colorful English court scene where Queen Elizabeth is hostess to her suitors, some of whom are bringing news of Roanoke Island in a land which she names Virginia, in honor of herself, the virgin queen. At right is beautiful Barbara Edwards, first North Carolina native to play the female lead of Eleanor Dare. Uppowoc, the Indian medicine man is shown in one of his sensational dances at left.
