counties of the state have made substantial progress with improved farming practices, including livestock, poultry and dairy. In addition to the amount of increased income the farm families have learned to do a better job of farming. These farm families are now enjoying "Better Living Through Better Farming".

Since July, 1947, the present ounty supervisor, Silas S. music world, was the subject of a lengthy story in the daily press Sunday. He will sing at Cullowhee January 30.

The story, which was written by Don Bishop and carried a New York dateline, is as follows:

There's no vocal training like that to be had from doing choral and solo work in a church under good direction, according to Walter Carringer. 26, who has done all kinds of singing and still sticks to his church position.

Carringer, a North Carolinian whose mother, Mrs. Ruth Carringer, lived in Winston-Salem, before returning to their home in Murphy. sings at Calvary Baptist Church in Manhattan.

At the same time, he is a member of the Robert Shaw Chorale; a male ensemble directed by Don Craig; and a recording artist for children's songs at RCA Victor.

The Robert Shaw Chorale at the moment is occupying him more than anything else. He has arranged for a leave of absence from the church for 10 weeks to tour with Shaw. Last year the chorale toured a few weeks in several states, including performances at High Point, Greensboro, Winston-Salem and Raleigh

This year's junket will take Carringer to the midwest, southwest, and south. One stop is scheduled for Western Carolina Teachers College at Cullowhee, of which he is an alumnus. He is keeping his fingers crossed that he will get the nod for a solo there Solo calls are by no means rare for Carringer. Last November he sang two tenor arias with the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra. He was leading tenor in a rendition of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah," in a concert on Long Island. At Town Hall in December he was one of four soloists in Ralph Vaughan Williams' "Mass in G Mi-

Not all assignments are big, of course. When the Shaw company recorded Bach's "St. John Passion" in October, they rehearsed for weeks and took nine evenings for the actual recording work. Carringer's voice was just one of the many except for what he laughingly called "a big two-line solo." Shaw's chorale does a great deal of recording and Carringer's voice may be heard in Easter, Thanksgiving, and other holiday albums furned out by the 16 male and 14 female voices

Occasionally numbers or groups of numbers are done on the light side-"everything from Bach to j've," Carringer expressed it. But when pinned down for a sample of "jive" recorded by the group Mrs. Sam Rose and Miss Leola he could think of nothing more musically racy than something by
