Folk School And Halls Chosen To Portray True American Life To All The World

Word has just been received by Howard Kester, Director of the John C. Campbell Folk School, that the United States Department of State has selected the Folk School together with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hall and family for a film on mountain life and culture. The role of handicrafts in the life of a rural family will be featured. Shooting of the film will begin the middle of May and will continue through most of the summer. The production will be under the direction of Hartley Associates of New York City.

This film is one of twelve known as The Common Denominator Series to be made in various parts of the United States. The movies are to be used all over the world as a means of truthfully portraying American life as its best. Since many peoples of foreign countries, especially in the Near and Far East cannot understand the English language and therefore cannot be benefited by broadcasts of the Voice of America, these films are designed to appeal to the eye and carry an important message regarding every day life in America.

Mr. Hall is a farmer and gardener. He has a cow and chickens, and his children have white rabbits. He received training in carving at the Folk School and carves prancing horses and Christmas cherubs. He carves on rainy days and evenings, thus supplementing his farm income and giving expression to his creative art.

Mrs. Hall is an ambitious wife and mother. She spends much of her time in summer canning food for the winter, and her yard has many beautiful flowers.

Mr. Hall's father, Ben Hall, is a carver, also.

Miss Morgan was reared at Morgan Hill here, where she came at the age of three. She is the daughter of the late Alfred and Fannie Morgan.

She graduated from High School in Springfield, Mo., while staying with an older sister, Mrs. Anna Freas. There was no High School here at that time. Then she went to the State Normal at Mt. At the request of her brother, the Rev. Rufus Morgan, she came to Penland where she taught in the industrial school for boys and girls. After working in this capacity for several years she felt the need for the women in the community to earn something to supplement their living, so that is when the work in Handicrafts started in a small way. Today it is the largest such school in the U. S.

Miss Morgan has been informed that this summer there will be a teacher there from Finland, one from Greece, and several from Latin America.
