Option Is Given Stores Doing Less Than $100,000

Retail stores doing less than $100,000 total store volume a year may elect not to file a chart under Ceiling Price Regulation No. 7, it was announced from Washington Monday in a dispatch to Director Ben E. Douglas, Charlotte.

Further relief is given to stores doing a relatively small volume of business in housewares, notions, sporting goods, silverware, chinaware, glassware, jewelry, watches and clocks. Stores doing less than $60,000 annually in these categories of items may elect to price them under General Ceiling Price Regulation rather than under No. 7 irrespective of the total volume of business done by the store.

These are the two main provisions in this amendment. A third provision retains a principle of the original regulation No. 7 which gives the option to any retailer whose total sales of the items covered by No. 7 is less than $20,000 annually to remain under the General Ceiling Price Regulation, the message to Director Douglas made it clear.

In announcing today that the amendment was forthcoming, the Washington OPS warned that all other retailers selling items controlled by CPR 7 and its amendments must file their pricing charts by May 31 if they want to continue to sell legally after that date. There will be an extension of that deadline, it was emphasized.

It was also pointed out that a retailer who elected to remain under the General Ceiling Price Regulation does not have to notify OPS if a retailer who has already filed his chart under Regulation 7 and is not eligible to remain under GPR and wishes to do so, he has until July 2 to request the return of his chart from his OPS district office. If he has not so requested, then after that date he must continue to price under Regulation 7.

In announcing this amendment OPS also announced that an amendment to CCPR is being issued which will give relief to certain "squeeze" conditions in which merchants have been caught under General Ceiling Price Regulation.

It is estimated that at least one-third of the stores originally covered by No. 7 are now eligible to elect to remain under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.
