OLIVE HEADQUARTERS TO WORK WHILE UMSTEAD FOLKS FROLIC

Raleigh, May 15—Hubert E. Olive said today his State campaign staff would not pitch a party for his supporters attending the State Democratic convention here May 22.

"We don't have the money and we don't have the time," Olive commented when informed that Umstead forces had reserved the sumptuous Cafe Gardens, in Hotel Sir Walter, and were arranging an elaborate reception for Umstead supporters attending the convention.

"Our opposition, which is heavily financed, can afford it, but we can't; and we wouldn't if we could," Olive said.

"We have more important things to do," he continued. "Besides, our friends will be more pleased to see our headquarters staff hard at work instead of holding a gypsy tea or something down in one of the expensive ballrooms."

"Such stuff might be all right for the lobbyists and office holders backing my opponent. They are used to an easy-going, plushy type of living. But the rank and file of North Carolinians, who are supporting me, don't go for that sort of thing.

"They are sick and tired of expensive parties, mink coats and big bankrolls that they associate with lobbyists, professional politicians and five-percenters."

"Yes, on convention day our friends — and many of them will be here — will be welcomed to our headquarters. We'll be proud and happy to see them."

"But I'll have to warn them that they'll find our headquarters staff hard at work. There'll be no liquor or caviar, no tea or crumpets. Just a glad hand and cheery smile — and plenty of confidence."

Olive's campaign managers, having set up a working organization in every county in the State, anticipated they would stay busy on convention day conferring with key supporters from all over the State.

Newsmen covering the headquarters have called it the busiest they ever saw. The clerical force includes day and night shifts, and key directors of the campaign are on duty all hours.

WOULD you be interested in getting one gallon free with each tankful of gasoline you buy?

Then we can tell you this: It will certainly be worth your while to read this brief story of Buick's new Airpower carburetor.

Truth is—a skillful driver can just about double the bonus we mention, if he makes the most of what this year's ROADMASTER has to offer.

The reason you can get such a bonus traces to a pair of simple facts:

- (1) It's a mixture of gasoline and air that gives you power.
- (2) Buick engineers have come up with a four-barrel automatic carburetor that lets you use more gallons of air per gallon of fuel.

Most of the time, only two of these barrels are needed—and they feed such a thrifty mixture that you use less gasoline at 40 mph than you'd formerly use at 30.

But—when you want a quick burst of eager power—you can double the air supply as well as the gasoline feed—and come up with the highest horsepower that Buick's Fireball 8 Engine ever delivered.

Of course, any man who's buying a car as fine as a ROADMASTER wants a lot more than extra miles from a tankful of gas.

He wants the distinction of extra room, extra comfort, richer fabrics and all the other refinements that make a car truly fine.

He wants to ride with solid security, confident poise and lordly silence.

And, while he may not admit it, he yearns for a car that's full of fun.

All this, we promise you, and more will be yours when you take the responsive wheel of a ROADMASTER.

How about doing that—soon?
