Supreme Court Favors Murphy Mail Order Firm

J. Harvey Wilson Sr. Wins Decision On Jenkins Act; McKeever Is Attorney

A Murphy mail order firm today had won a 7-2 Supreme Court decision in a hearing growing out of a four year old charge by the Federal Government that J. Harvey Wilson Sr., doing business as Cooperative Buying Service here violated provisions of the Jenkins Act.

The act-seeking to prevent mail order cigarette business-stipulates that concerns must "for- case on the infinitive "to forward" ward" to the government of the state, to which the cigarettes are court agreed than an offense, if mailed, the number of cigarettes and to whom they were sold.

VOLUME 62-NUMBER 30

The case started in the Federal courts of Louisana when Mr. Wilson was indicted with alleged violation of the act in Louisiana.

Defense attorney Hobart L. Mc-Keever of Murphy won a motion in the Louisiana court that if a crime had been committed, it had taken place in North Carolina and not in Louisiana.

The U. S. appealed the federal court decision in Louisiana to the Supreme Coure in Washington, D. C. Mr. McKeever argued his case there where he
