Farm Agent Lists Five Steps For Pig Profits

Farmers can greatly improve their 1953 pork profit outlook if they will follow five proven steps to save more pigs, G. H. Farley, Cherokee county farm agent for the State College Extension Service, asserts.

Noting that about 75 per cent of all baby pig losses occur before the weaning age, Mr. Farley stresses that precautionary steps in the first few weeks after farrowing will pay big dividends.

The five points suggested for swine producers are:

1. Balanced rations for the sow while she is building her unborn litter. The proper rations will mean stronger baby pigs and a better survival rate.
2. Clean hog lots, and good sanitation around farrowing pens. The sow and litter should be moved to clean ground as soon as weather permits. This will reduce the danger from parasites and disease germs.
3. Keep quarters warm, dry, and well ventilated. Keep some clean sods in the pens to prevent baby pig anemia.
4. Watch the sow's diet after farrowing. Few solids should be fed in the 36 hours after farrowing, and the sow should be returned to the regular ration slowly.
5. Keep a sharp lookout for sickly pigs and any disease symptoms. If disease appears, get a prompt diagnosis to prevent its spread through the herd. Have pigs vaccinated against cholera and also against erysipelas in areas where that disease is a threat.
