

Bigger Local Bank Deposits Good Sign

NEW YORK.—Personal savings were at high level in Cherokee County during the past year, in keeping with the "nest-egg" gains recorded in most other sections of the country.

The findings, a barometer of good times, are based on a report just released by the Federal Reserve System showing bank deposits in every county in the United States.

Deposits in Cherokee County savings and commercial banks at the close of the last fiscal year reached the high mark of $2,963,000, a considerable gain over the $1,994,000 reported in a previous survey made by the Federal Reserve in 1944.

The figures include time deposits (savings accounts) and demand deposits (checking accounts) of individuals, partnerships and corporations, but exclude inter-bank and Governmental deposits.

The local rise in bank deposits represents an increase of 48.6 percent in the period, a greater gain than was recorded in the same span in the United States as whole, or 48.4 per cent. In the State of North Carolina as a whole, during the same period there was a rise in bank deposits of 46.4 percent.

For every man, woman and child in Cherokee County there is now on deposit, the Government survey shows, an average of $186, as compared with $120 per capita in 1944.

Commenting on the situation the Federal Reserve points out: "The expansion in deposits of business and individuals which accompanied the growth of bank credit in 1952 has been largely in the form of time deposits—a development which contributed to sustained high level activity with-

Cottonseed Meal For Sale, McNabb Says

H. B. McNabb, Chairman of the Cherokee County PMA Committee announced today that the Commodity Credit Corporation has stocks of cottonseed meal for sale.

This meal may be obtained from the PMA Commodity Office in 20 ton lots for $73.00 per ton, plus the cost of bags which is about $3.70 per ton. The price is for 41 percent protein meal, whereas the 36 percent protein is available at a discount of $5.00 per ton.

Mr. McNabb says this cottonseed meal has been acquired by the Commodity Credit Corporation as a part of the 1952 Cottonseed Price Support Program. It is stored at Charlotte, Raleigh, Raeford, Goldsboro, Monroe, Tarboro, Wilson, Gastonia, and at points in other States.

Farmers or others interested in obtaining this cottonseed meal may do so by contacting F. P. Biggs, Director PMA Commodity Office, 120 Marais Street, Wirth Building, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Gamma Globulin Distributed By RC

Gamma Globulin having a commercial value of $13,000,000 has been distributed to State Health Departments by the American Red Cross since 1944, the organization said today as the Office of Defense Mobilization officially began nationwide distribution of the miracle blood derivative.

When the Red Cross started its distribution of gamma globulin 9 years ago, it recalled that blood serum was used only for the prevention or moderation of measles.

Later it was found to be effective in the treatment of infectious hepatitis and more recently as a prophylaxis against paralytic poliomyelitis. The Red Cross pointed out that all the gamma globulin that it distributed had been provided to the public without charge.

It was produced at Red Cross expense from war surplus blood plasma returned to Red Cross by the armed forces following V-J Day.
