Edwards Named Judge; Mason Is Soilcitor

Cherokee County will have a County Recorder's Court starting July 12 after the Cherokee County Commissioners established the court last Monday.

Herman Edwards was appointed judge and L. L. Mason named solicitor by the commissioners.

The court will meet every Monday and will try misdemeanor cases in which punishment is limited to a maximum of two years. The jurisdiction of the court will not go beyond cases with twoyear maximum punishment, Judge Edwards said.

The court will handle criminal cases only. No civil authority is granted the court. Defen may request a jury trial.

The Recorder's Court will hold sessions in the Cherokee County courtroom and clerk of Superior can call special sessions of the court at any time.

The County Commissioners set up the Recorder's Court after two Superior Court Judges while holding court here pointed out the office here each first and third need of a lower court. The judges er's Court were Judge F. D. Phillips and Judge H. H. Sink.

> It is believed by the commissioners that a Recorder's Court will save county taxpayers from $3,000 to $4,000 a year.

A breakdown of the savings includes money spent to keep a petit jury on duty about 10 days per year for the trial of misdeeanor cases. The new court is expected to reduce the period to three or four days. The new court will relieve the grand jury from considering misdemeanor cases except those cases from which an appeal is taken.

Part of the county's yearly jaill fees of over $2,000 per year is expected to be reduced with the use of the new court. The county will not have to keep prisoners who are unable to post bonds from one term Superior Court to another. sisted of two baskets arrange-ments of suringe darking a darking der the Recorder's Court jurisdic-
