CATHOLIC SEED CORN
THE THRILL OF SPORTS

To win in sports contests is not so important as to prove in a skill and courage. The spirit must prevail over technique which, though necessary, is neither the whole of sport nor the best part of it.

Sports needs Christian principles to free itself from the bondage of material things and to become worthy of man's immortal soul. Young men should be convinced that care of the body is not a goal in itself but should be directed to intellectual and moral perfection of soul. The exercise of sport should not interfere with the duties of one's state of life, but rather be helpful towards their observance, at least indirectly, by rebuilding energy. No motive dispenses sportsmen from respecting the common moral law in its triple object: God, the family and society, and themselves.

The responsibility of spectators, organizers and sportswriters is serious and grave in cases where they applaud a dangerous risk or exact from athletes an inhuman strain.

The Church's aim in encouraging athletics and sports is to give youth an incentive for recreation to teach them how it is to be carried out according to religious and moral principles.

God love you now.
