THE MAN I KNOW AS JESUS

By LINDA GREEN

One night about four years ago, I met a man that I know as Jesus. It was one of those cold, windy, snowy night when a blazing fire feels good. Not spiritually, though. This Jesus of Galilee knocked at my door and the door of my heart and life, also. When I opened the door, a gust of wind blinded me for a moment, but this stranger's face had shone through all of this. Even though I didn't know Him, something made me invite Him in. He seemed to hypnotize me with His manner. As he walked into the room, I noticed that He wasn't dressed as a person today, but as a person centuries ago.

I just couldn't look Him in the eyes, because He seemed to look deeper than my eyes, down into my very soul. Something stopped me from offering Him a drink or a cigarette, because as I looked at Him, I simply couldn't imagine Him smoking or drinking.

Suddenly my eyes fell on His hands and feet, and I noticed a blood stain on the side of His robe. When He warmed Himself at the fire, something told me that He had knocked at my door before.

Then I said, "O, Sir! What happened to your hands and feet, and what caused the stain on the side of Your robe?" He turned and looked at me with a melting look, and softly I heard, "The Old Rugged Cross" being sung somewhere in the distance, and as this happened, this man's countenance began to glow with such a radiance that is seldom seen on earth.

Suddenly I knew! This was the Messiah! The Christ! The Everlasting Father! The Prince of Peace! It was He, the Son of God, who died for my sins on Calvary. The One who lived on earth, centuries ago, as we do today.

It was this that made me kneel before Him, "The Man I Know As Jesus".

CHEMISTRY CLASS

The two chemistry classes under the direction of Mr. John Thompson left school about 8:45 Friday morning. They went in cars to the Copper Basin where they toured the contact and lead chamber plants for making sulphuric acid, the laboratories, the smelter where they saw Prince-Smith converter and the reverberatory furnace, the blacksmith shop, and the copper sulfate plant where they observed the making of copper sulfate crystals from the crystallizing tanks to the packaging operations. The class ate lunch at the Sahara restaurant.

Three men from the safety department of the Tennessee Copper Company and trained experts in each phase of the operations guided the teen-agers, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Mease through the large and complicated operations.

ARCHIE ANDREWS

The senior play, a three-act comedy entitled Archie Andrews, was a huge success. Bill Browning (Archie) and Bernice Timpson (Mrs. Jenkins) will receive the medals for the best actor and actress. The judges, Mrs. C. L. Alverson, Mrs. Hobart McKeever and Father Joseph Dean, also commended Becky Rhoads (Veronica), Sue Anderson (Mon), Gene Allen Palmer (Jughead) and Wayne Marshall (Dad) for their fine performance. Others in the cast were Patty Worthen, Judy Sneed, Barbara Griffith, Kenneth Kephart, Bobby Easley, Sara English, Howard Arrowood, and Shannon (a dog). Miss Pegues and Winnie Hubbard, student director, did a wonderful job co-ordinating everything into a smooth running play. Ann Parker, as advertising director, kept the public aware of the play. Ushers were Mary Rogers, Lois McAfee, Anna Laura Swanson, Katherine Nix, Jean Trull, and Betty Sue Garrett, on Friday night; and Alice Kephart, Betty West, Glenna Owenby, Wilma Jean Voyles, Betty Ann Parker, and Lois Kirkland on Saturday night. In concessions were Joanne O'Dell, Carolyn Moore, Mary Ann Rose, Ed Gibbs, Willie Jean Allen and Frances Gentry. Mr. Jack Tutton, Miss Maria Travis, and Mrs. Emily Miller were in charge of the admission and concessions.

DEFENDENT CONVICTED

Each year Mrs. Ward's civics classes have a mock trial in the courthouse. This year the accusation was murder, the defendant Emanuel McDonald. Lawyers for the defense were Jay Wilson, Paul Barker, Louis Martin, and Evangelina Craig. Defense witnesses were Bill Rhodes, Jimmy Gibbs, Becky Hughes, and Winston Craig. Prosecuting attorneys were Ruth Bates, Beth Bailey, Pearly Chastain, and Carol Robb. Prosecution witnesses were Lawrence Beal, Bobby Jo Graves, Gene Sneed, Patsy Postell, and Lloyd Beavers. Attorney, Hobart McKeever, presided as judge. There were two juries. One returned a verdict of murder in the first degree; the other said murder in the second degree. At any rate everyone involved learned a great deal about court procedure, and what's more, they enjoyed it.

STUDENT COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Betty Kate Wilson was elected president and Lonnie Hoover vice-president of the student council for next year. Running against Betty Kate for president were Ramona Haggard and Linda English. Lonnie's opponents were Johnny Hawkins and Carolyn Bates.

Each senior home room elects three representatives to the council; the junior and sophomore home rooms two each; and the freshmen room one each. Rising seniors, juniors, and sophomores elected their representatives last week. The freshmen will elect theirs after school starts next year.

BREAKFAST

The Methodist young people served breakfast to adult and youth friends from the Baptist, Episcopal, and Presbyterian churches at 6:30 before going to the cemetery for the early morning services. Young people who served were Charlene Davidson, Ronnie Brittain, Ramona Haggard, Betty Weaver, Charles Smith, Laura Bailey, Bobby Weaver, Nancy Marshall, and Lynn Whitley. Adults who helped were Mrs. Mae Brittain and Mrs. Sallie Davidson.

Internal Revenue Director Making Canvass For Delinquent Returns

P. K. Sanders, District Director of Internal Revenue, with headquarters in Greensboro, announced today that a State-wide canvass for delinquent federal tax returns is now in progress. During this canvass, which began on April 22 and will continue for a month, effort will be made to contact all individuals, firms, and corporations who are liable for taxes for which returns have not been filed. Special attention will be given to unreported income, employment, and excise taxes.

For several weeks, the Internal Revenue staff has been checking its records of returns against public license and registration records and other information items. Many leads to unreported tax liabilities have been developed by this comparison. Mr. Sanders said, "Even though our field forces are constantly alert to detect unreported tax liabilities as a part of their day-to-day activities, the results of this check indicate the need for an organized and systematic canvass of the entire District to make certain that all citizens and residents who are liable for federal taxes of the various classes are filing returns and paying the taxes due."

During the next four weeks, enforcement officers of the Internal Revenue Service will devote their entire time exclusively to this assignment, and will call on taxpayers who have not filed required returns. Mr. Sanders urged all persons and firms falling in this category to tabulate information and file returns for which they are liable. He urged all who have any question regarding liability and those who need assistance to contact a Collection Officer at the nearest Internal Revenue Office. The Internal Revenue office in this area is located at Franklin, North Carolina.
