Deputies Raid Still And Stop Shooting

Man Hides On Hill With Rifle To Blast Friends

Sheriff deputies captured a still Monday afternoon and may possibly have halted a double murder at the same time.

Deputy Charles White said Tuesday that the still was discovered in the Sandy Gap section and one man was arrested at the scene.

The 65-year-old man was hiding and waiting for two partners to return.

He was hiding on a bank with a rifle, according to Mr. White.

The man, who is in county jail, said his two partners had beaten him up. He was scratched across the face and hands, Mr. White said.

The scratches, the man said, came from blows with a tree limb.

Beyond bruises and scratches, Mr. White said, the man did not appear to be badly injured.

He did not say what the fight was about.

Mr. White said the other two men connected with the still are expected to be arrested at any time.

They had apparently just left the still with a load of liquor. The 55-gallon still had just completed a run, Mr. White said.

There was no mash or liquor to be found in the area. The still was destroyed.

Taking part in the arrest were Jack McMillan and Charles White.
