Farmers Buying or Selling Land
Creek With ASC Office

Persons who are buying or selling farmland for which an acreage allotment has been established have a definite responsibility for becoming familiar with the regulations of the Secretary of Agriculture governing combination and division of allotments and for advising County ASC Committees when purchases or sales have been made, according to H. D. Godfrey, State Administrative Officer for the ASC committees are not in a position to know of all land sales and purchases and therefore cannot make a change in the acreage allotments for the land involved until a request for a division or combination is filed by the interested producers.

The regulations and instructions issued by the Department of Agriculture tell how allotments may be divided or combined.

County ASC committees must follow these regulations in all cases.

Many farmers have had some sad experiences in the past because they did not determine in advance how the acreage allotments would be divided before they bought or sold land covered by the allotments.

Godfrey advised that both the buyer and seller have a responsibility for notifying the county ASC office as soon as possible after land is sold and of requesting the county committee to make a division of the allotments for the farm if only a

GARDEN TIME

By M. E. GARDNER
N. C. State College

Our students in horticulture built a float for the "Homecoming Parade" at State College last Saturday. The floor of the trailer was covered with a green raffia mat, representing a football field, augmented with goal posts and a giant football completely covered with hardy red and white chrysanthemum blossoms. Fringing the two sides of the trailer were cardboard strips covered with chrysanthemums and spelling out the word, "Welcome Grads." In back, we spelled out "Horticulture" in red and white. In all we used about 20,000 blossoms, most of which were wired to floral picks in order that they might be held securely in place. This was quite a task which was finished about 4 a. m. Saturday. The trailer was pulled by a red and white convertible adorned with two pretty coeds in evening gowns. The float placed third in the campus Organizations Division.

I am writing about this because it was such a splendid group effort on the part of student members of our Horticultural Club. Approximately 20 boys and girls worked from 5 p. m. Friday until 4 a. m. Saturday to accomplish the task.

If you want to undertake something of this nature for high school or college festivities next fall why not begin preparation now? Your local florist and nurseryman, vocational agriculture teacher, county agent and local garden clubs will be glad to offer suggestions concerning suitable flowers that can be produced outside as a school project. Right now I can think of nothing better than hardy chrysanthemums, about which I have already written.

A number of requests have been received for information concerning variety lists of tree fruits, small fruits and grapes for the home and farmstead. I will write about this next week.

part of the farm is sold.

If the purchaser owns other land and wishes to combine the newly purchased land with the other land he must file a request with the county committee for the combination. The county committee, according to Godfrey, may not approve a combination unless the tracts are operated in the manner prescribed by the Secretary's regulations and instructions.

Before approving a combination, county committees are required to determine that a legal deed has been made and recorded in connection with the newly purchased land.

Godfrey urged that lawyers or real estate dealers who are handling the sale or purchase of farmland or who are advising farmers in such transactions become familiar with the regulations before advising their clients or completing any such transactions.

the sale of subscriptions to the Cherokee Scout.

Very good results have come in so far from the clubs that have started selling the paper.

This is an opportunity for you to add some money to your club treasury, so be thinking where you can make a sale after your club has been given the go sign on selling the Cherokee Scout.

FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: When does the new Poultry Products Inspection Act become effective?

ANSWER: It becomes effective on Jan. 1, 1939. At that time all poultry and poultry products which move across state line for sale must be inspected by an agent of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.
