 Trustees. He accepted this responsibility. Under his leadership thing began to happen.
 Hamby Hall was reclaimed after several years of almost total demolition.
 The water system was changed from a group of mountain springs to a well 365 feet deep with a flow of 120 gallons per minute. Electrical equipment was installed in the kitchen including stoves, hot water tanks, and heavy refrigeration. Electrical hot water tanks were placed in all of the dormitories.
 These modern facilities came to be taken as a matter of course. Each year some improvements were made in the equipment.
 The Pruett-Barrett Family left by will a grant of $60,000.00. Through investment of the principal over a period of time this principal was increased to $85,000.00. In the beginning this money was earmarked for an administration building. The delay in using this money for the construction of such a building was due to the rise in cost of building material following World War II.

 In desperation the Board "seized the bull by the horns" and let the contract for the Pruett-Barrett building with the avowed purpose of finding the funds to supplement the Pruett-Barrett grant if necessary. This they did.
Sharp Memorial Church
 For many years a fund had been accumulating gradually for a church edifice, a memorial to Dr. J. A. Sharp, President of the College for thirty years. Renewed interest was created in this project in the late forties.
 Through an intensified campaign for funds, enough money was raised to authorized the Board to let the contract for the present Sharp Memorial Church. Paying for this building was no easy job, but it was done.
 At the same time the lovely parsonage was built. Credit for this building must be given to Dr. Dow Kirkpatrick, the college minister. In spite of much discouragement he saw this building completed
Conference Campaign
 Since much was done during these difficult years on borrowed money, something had to be done to satisfy the creditors of the college. For the first time the North Georgia Conference permitted a campaign for funds to be conducted in the Methodist churches of the Conference. This campaign was organized and directed by loyal friends and alumni of the college.
 Between fifty and seventy-five thousand dollars were realized through this effort. It was understood that the money from this campaign would be used first to clear all indebtedness of the college. As a result the college was again out of the red.
 After this great struggle more and more interest in the college and its program grew from year to year. Under Mr. Appelby's leadership much money has been given for continued improvements in buildings, faculty salaries and curriculum expansion.
 Among these improvements are new dormitories, gymnasium, student center, expansion of the library, and the building and operating of the Young Harris Clinic.

QUESTION: How many DHIA records in North Carolina are now being calculated on IBM electronic computing machines at N. C. State College, and what are the advantages to this system?

ANSWER: At the end of September, 124 DHIA herds were enrolled in this new computing system. This is 20 per cent of the herds enrolled in DHIA throughout the state. The advantages of the electronic computing machine are these: It prints easy-to-read reports. Up-to-date production and feed information is given for each cow on one report. More information is possible than was possible with hand calculations. The records are more accurate. They are also labor-saving.

For a growing income, market eggs out of state.

The water system has been strengthened by the addition of another deep well.
