Teachers for the session were Norma W. Wilson, Wanda Aguirre, Mary McDonald, Brenda Strickland, Sandra Sanderson, Judith Andrews, Robert Fairley, Nancy Burris, William C. Locklear and Miss Blakeney.

Aides were: Roberta Gleavey, Judy Seals, Mackie Ellis, Betty M. Mallard, and Willie Mae Mason. Student aides included Lejeanna Hammonds, Fondarie Locklear, Evon Locklear, Jeffery Strong, Sherry Bledsoe, Carol Smiling, DeLoris Locklear and Sheila Deese. Marianna T. Johnson was records clerk.

Principal B. C. McBee extended the welcome and the program was announced by Jacqueline Blakeney, migrant education teacher. The pupils presented several songs with poems recited by Tammy Bryant and Amanda Blue. The songs included "This Land is Our Land" and "Spirit of '76." A dance by the students to "Bus Stop" concluded the program.

Refreshments of punch, cookies and peanuts were served to the visitors and students. Exhibits and crafts were on display in the building.

Eighty-five pupils have participated in the summer program which concluded Friday, July 30. Coy C. Horne served as director for the summer migrant session.

Political Science Class Holds Mock Presidential Convention

Mr. Morell LaRue, the one member of the class most known for the fact that he "could not stand politics," was chosen today to be chairman of a mock presidential convention held in Dr. Gray's class in introductory political science at Pembroke State University. Mr. LaRue is an insurance adjuster from St. Pauls, NC.

The convention nominated Jimmy Carter for the presidency and Dr. Gray for the vice presidency.

After lively discussion, in which the chairman himself participated, the convention adopted several platform planks. Among them were planks calling for limitations on the powers of the federal government, financial aid to education, a national health insurance program, freedom for mothers to have an abortion, and sterilization for unwed mothers who have had three children born out of wedlock.
