Former Tar Heel Rescues Tenant in Buffalo fire

A man whose parents and brother were killed 29 years ago by murdering arsonists in North Carolina ran into a burning house early Thursday to save the life of his tenant.

Henry T. Lowry, 46, of 253 Grote St. (front), kicked in a door at a cottage behind his home and led Charles R. Salome, 51, a tenant on the second floor, to safety.

Another tenant, Thorne S. Dombick, 73, wheeled himself to safety from his first-floor apartment in his wheelchair, to which he has been confined since suffering a stroke. A son, Hoy, 28, was not home.

Lowry, a handyman and house remodeler, had built Dombick a ramp so that he could enter and leave the house on his own.

Fire fighters responded to an alarm at 12:50 a.m. but found the occupants of the burning cottage outside, thanks to Lowry.

Fire officials said the blaze, which started from defective wiring in Dombick's apartment, caused $25,000 damage.

Lowry doesn't like to talk about the incident in the South that left his family dead. He related only that he was at work when robbers killed his parents and brothers and then set the house on fire in an apparent attempt to cover the crime.

Lowry said his wife, Shirley, awakened him after hearing the elderly tenant yelling for help. Lowry looked outside and saw the rear cottage burning. He ran barefoot and in his underwear to the dwelling as flames began shooting from the windows.

Lowry said he yelled for Salome, rang his bell and pounded on his door, but got no response.

"So I just kicked the door in and got him," the landlord said. Lowry added that his only fear was that Salome would be trapped upstairs by the fire.

The tenant, a veteran of 30 years with the Navy, is employed with the CETA program at Veterans Administration Hospital. He is staying with a relative.

give us a lot more prestige, more to shoot for."

Dr. Ashton P. Wiggs of Atlantic Christian, president of the conference, said, "We feel very fortunate to have Pembroke State in the conference. They have a good overall sports program which is compatible with the other schools, and their facilities are outstanding."

PSU Joins

"Many of our schools already compete with Pembroke State in athletics," added Dr. Clyde H. Robertson of Pfeiffer, the conference commissioner. "And it seems logical to us for them to be part of the conference and compete for its championships."

Gane emphasized that the door is still open to the possibility of Pembroke State competing for the conference's winter sports championships—specifically, basketball—this year.

"We already have two games scheduled with Catawba, Guilford and Atlantic Christian," he noted.

"That's not enough, and we would have to count some other games as conference games in order to participate in the post-season tournament."

"The conference's basketball committee is going to be working on that, and so are we. We have hopes of ironing something out," Gane added.

Gane said Pembroke State will continue its joint affiliation with Division II of the National Collegiate Athletics Association (NCAA) and District 29 of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

Lacey Gane, athletic director at Pembroke State for 12 years and an active campaigner for the university's membership in the Carolinas Conference for three years, called Wednesday "a great day for Pembroke State athletics."

"As an independent, recruiting—everything—has been difficult," said Gane. "We're no Notre Dame or Penn State. This is going to

Pembroke B.P.W. Club plans Sept. Meeting

The September meeting of the Pembroke Business and Professional Women's Club will be held on Monday, September 13th at 7:00 p.m. at Maynor Manor with Ms. Helen Sampson, Ms. Molly Briley and Ms. Pazava Thompson serving as hostesses for the meeting.

Ms. Grace S. Epps, First Vice-President and Chairperson of the Program Committee, has announced that Ms. Betsy Clark, Project Director for the North Carolina Commission on the Status of Women in Raleigh will be the guest speaker. The September program will focus on "State and National Legislation Affecting the Status of Women." Ms. Clark will be accompanied by Ms. Clara S. Bryant, Coordinator for Region N Council on Status of Women for Bladen, Hoke, Scotland and Robeson Counties.

The Pembroke BPW club has been active in writing and contacting State legislators regarding the ratification of the equal Rights Amendment and under the leadership and guidance of the Chairperson of the Legislative Committee, Ms. Bertha M. Chavis, the club will actively seek the support and endorsement of incumbent and newly-elected legislators. The Program and Legislative Committees will design a "Meet the Candidates" program on October 19 which will provide citizens an opportunity to meet and discuss the issues with local and state candidates. The program will be co-sponsored by the Pembroke BPW Club and the Pembroke Jaycees and will be held at the Pembroke Jaycee Clubhouse.

During National Business Women's Week, October 17-23, the Pembroke BPW Club will host a Business Women's Dinner on Monday, October 18th at Maynor Manor. The program will be entitled "A Salute to Women" at which time the annual
