Social Services
Ain't Talking after Executive Session Vote

Defying the law and questions from the news media, The Robeson County Department of Social Services refused to divulge public action taken by the Social Services Board of Directors Tuesday.

The public was left with rumors of possible embezzlement. No one would say whether the embezzlement charges had any validity or even who was questioned or discussed.

Director Russell Sessions refused comment on the matter referring all questions to the Chairman of the Board, Rev. H.E. Edwards.

When questioned by a local reporter as to whether any action was taken during an executive session at Tuesday's meeting, Edwards admitted that the Board did take action and that they would not divulge the action taken, according to news accounts, "for the time being."

Rev. H.E. Edwards, seemingly, was incensed at the local reporter for questioning the Board.

The Social Services Board is headed by Edwards, a Black, and has a minority (Indian-Black) majority. County Commissioner Herman Dial, who, according to reports, did not attend Tuesday's meeting, is a member as is McDuffie Cummings of Pembroke.

On the face of it, the Social Services Board broke the law, specifically, the provisions of the N.C. Open Meetings Law.

A Board may go into executive session to discuss acquisition of property, personnel matters and conferences with legal counsel.

Their deliberations and discussions of these matters can be kept private but no vote may be taken in executive session.

The law says that action taken must be in open meetings following executive session including voting.

At press time, local news media was considering legal action to force the board to publicly state the results of their Tuesday meeting.

Said an observer, "It seems even minorities are in contempt of the public's right to know."

Warriors whip

Fairmont 0-16

The Pembroke Senior High Warriors hung on to whip rival Fairmont 20-16 last Friday night. They play the Prospect Cats at Prospect tomorrow night (Friday). The onrushing Warriors are now 4-0 for the season.

The Warriors were helped by the pin point passing and engineering of Senior Quarterback Travis Sampson who passed for 141 yards including an eight yard toss to Brian Oxendine. Sampson also ran in for a 2 yard conversion.

For his heroics Travis Sampson was picked as the Warrior of the Week.

Steve Pipkins also ran in two touchdowns for the Warriors as they converted on short goal line plays.

Fairmont capitalized on some late game lags in defense by the weary Warriors but staunch Ricky Brooks picked off a Fairmont pass late in the game as the Tornadoes threatened.

The Warriors picked off four passes by Tornado Quarterback Don Atkinson, including two by hard hitting Warrior linebacker William Hunt.

The Warriors play Prospect at Prospect tomorrow night. Coach Gene Winfree has Warrior fans excited about Warrior prospects this year. His charges have exerted themselves fully as they have marched to four consecutive victories.

her children. A dozen red roses were presented to her upon entering the fellowship hall by her children. The roses were a special gift because they were symbolic of the number of children in her family.
