REFLECTIONS
 Alta Oxendine

This time - Let's PRAY for our PRESIDENT! I believe it's too big a job for one mere human being to accomplish without constant divine guidance.

My mother was 80 years old on January 23rd! When I called her that night, she said she had had a lovely day! My cousin Betty had invited Mother and Daddy across the road to her trailer for a very nice birthday party. Daddy's 79th birthday was four days earlier. I sent him a regular birthday card. But I could find for Mother was a big pink valentine. On the back I wrote: "It's been nice knowing you for the last 50 of your 80 years." (Of course, I was rushing things a little. I'm still only 49.)

On Tuesday night I enjoyed fellowship with a group of Baptist Christians meeting at First Baptist Church. Since I'm originally from Montana, Rev. Tony Brewington had asked me to share some experiences as part of a program he was presenting on the Northwest.

I enjoyed the chance to talk about my native area - so much so that I rambled on and on about my growing up days and never got to my experiences on the Blackfeet Reservation.

Many times in the past I've had an opportunity to speak about the Blackfeet, their problems, and their needs. But in my 25 years in the Southeast, I have never before been invited before a group to describe the Northwest and life there. Perhaps, if this happens again in the next 25 years, I'll manage to get my thoughts together well enough to present a more complete picture of life there as I remember it - in one Indian community and several communities throughout Montana.

I also enjoyed attending the February meeting of United Methodist Women at First Methodist Church. We made our pledges to missions after Mrs. Molly Brillie explained the many needs.

I was especially grateful for canned food for the church and community center. There were also some cash donations for Emergency Aid. We at the center are grateful for the response we are receiving in the way of canned food and cash for emergency needs.

THAT INTERESTING INDIAN SURNAME BRAVEBOY

There can be no doubt at all that the family name BRAVEBOY, which appears in the colonial records of North Carolina as BRAVE BOY is of Anglo-Indian origin. McMillan Weeks and Olds, earliest historians to investigate Lumbee Indian history, agree that it was given to a Lumbee for some brave deed during the Tuscarora War (1711-13). The English with their customary habit of abbreviating long, cumbersome Indian names, shortened it in time to Brayboy. Today we spell it Brayboy and pronounce it Brayboy.

Most of the one hundred or less surnames among Robeson however, are of English origin. More than half of these surnames are identical with the surnames borne by the English Colonists of 1584, 1585 and 1587.

Some of these earliest colonial families have been absorbed by the main population but more than 50 percent are still retained among the Indians.

Because of this, much prejudice has attached itself to the thesis of the Lost Colony descent of the Lumbee Indians. This prejudice is so strong that Prof. Johnson of the University of North Carolina refused to publish a special study of his done in England to ascertain the surnames of All the English colonists of the 1580s. According to Edith Shepard, who wrote a thesis on the subject, Prof. Johnson said he was afraid of embarrassing many of his friends if he published his long list of surnames.

 May 5-7 - Carolinas Conference Tournament at Salisbury.

A Poem

Questions

What do I write
 When I've written it all
 What do I say
 When it's all been said

How can I love
 When my love has wasted away
 How can I cry
 When all of my tears have been shed

Where can I find hope
 When all hope is lost
 Where can I find light
 When darkness surrounds me

Why do I go on
 When so much is against me
 Why do I dream
 When my dreams are of impossible things

Attend the Church of your choice this Sunday.
