Local Youth to Perform With N.C. Ballet

The North Carolina Ballet, Southeastern Chapter, will present "Nutcracker" on Friday, December 9th at 8 p.m. at the Cumberland Memorial Auditorium in Fayetteville, NC.

This Christmas ballet, in two acts, will feature guest artist from the Soviet Union, Alexander Agadonov and Fredrick Begale, and local dancing teacher Charlotte Blume of Fayetteville. Alexander Agadonov has been in the United States 1 1/2 years and is the leading dancer with the Maryland State Ballet and has danced a season with the Pittsburgh Ballet also.

Robin Sanderson of Pembroke will be one of the youngest performers in the Ballet. She will dance in the "Trepak" and mice and children scene.

The Life and Times of Henry Berry Lowry

G.L. Barton

It appears that in addition to my two previous loyal fans — my mother and my pet dog Fido — I have two more fans among the readership of The Carolina Indian Voice. At their request, "The Life and Times of Henry Berry Lowry" is resumed.

Frank Wishart was born April 13, 1837, the third son of Eli and Mary Ann Strong Wishart. He was among the first to enlist his services in the Confederate Army when the Civil War erupted between the North and the South. During the war he earned many promotions (reaching the rank of captain) and commendations for bravery. After the Confederacy was defeated, Wishart returned to his native Robeson County to try and resume his life in a completely changed environment.

In January, 1866 he married Miss Lydia Pitman. Coincidentally, Henry Berry Lowry married Rhoda Strong, the most beautiful Indian maiden in Suffletown, also in the month of January of 1866. This is the only thing the two leaders had in common, however.

In 1870 Frances (Frank) Wishart opened a store in Shocheel, later named Maxton (because there were so many white families in the area with names beginning with Mac).

In an introduction of sorts in the "Wishart Diary" it is reported that "the writer had never heard any reasonable explanation of the motives or reasoning that led (Wishart) to leave his business, undergo the hardships, and risk his life in the war against the Lowry Gang." It could be that the $12,000 reward on Henry Berry's head — dead or alive — and the $6,000 reward on the remaining members' heads (except for Andrew Strong who was worth only $5,000) had a great deal to do with him deciding to "risk his life in the war against the Lowry Gang."

It was decided by the county leaders that a force larger (and more military) than the local Home Guard was needed to quell the Henry Berry Lowry Uprising. Because of his experience in the war Frank Wishart was persuaded by the county leaders to undertake command of the larger organization. He was raised in rank by the governor from a captain to a colonel. The ranks of the larger, military-like organization were filled by men drafted by the county commissioners to serve fixed periods of time under his command.

Quite naturally men drafted by the county commissioners were... More next week.

Robeson Registrar Files Suit Against Two

LUMBERTON — The chairman of the Robeson County Board of Elections and the county Democratic Party chairman have been named in a $1 million lawsuit.

Charging the Rev. Charles McDowell, the elections chief, and the Rev. E. B. Turner, the party leader, with damaging her reputation is Mary Imogene Horton, a Republican registrar for Lumber Bridge.

The civil suit filed with the Robeson County Clerk of Court Wednesday requests $500,000 in damages from both Turner and McDowell. Turner is also a Lumberton city councilman.

The suit claims damages in the form of "great mental anguish, pain, suffering and humiliation" for Mrs. Horton.

The damages resulted, the lawsuit claims, from Turner's attempt to have her removed from her registrar post.

Actual damages requested in the suit total $200,000, and punitive damages total $300,000 for each defendant.

The defendants have 30 days to respond to the suit.

Turner, in the suit, is charged with making statements about Mrs. Horton that "impugn her character as a public official and falsely and maliciously impugn her ability and fitness to serve the people of said community in a position of trust."

As stated in the suit, "these statements were not made in good faith by the defendant Turner and were either in reckless disregard for the truth or, in the alternative, were spoken negligently."

It also charges Turner with making statements "with malice toward the plaintiff so that she would be removed from her job."

The suit states that McDowell's statements "implying the plaintiff's bad character were false and without foundation in fact, and that the defendant McDowell sent this letter with little, if any, investigation into the truth or falsity of the allegations, and as such was negligent in failing to investigate the matter, before removing her, or, in the alternative, acted in reckless disregard of the truth."

The suit stems from activities last August following Mrs. Horton's reappointment by the county elections board as registrar for the northern Robeson County precinct of Lumber Bridge.

The reappointment of Mrs. Horton, who as a Republican had served five years in the post, was protested by Turner, who asked that a Democrat be appointed instead.

Turner told the board of elections, which is made up of two Democrats and one Republican, that three groups of people had come to him from Lumber Bridge expressing concern with "the character" of Mrs. Horton.

The statements by Turner concerning questions of Mrs. Horton's character came after he was told by County Attorney Joe P. Ward that individuals already sworn in as elections officials could only be removed "if something was proved improper about their character."

When questioned later, Turner refused to name the individuals whom he said had come to him from Lumber Bridge.

Following Turner's request, the two Democrats on the elections board, McDowell and Carmel Locklear, signed a letter to Mrs. Horton requesting her resignation as registrar.

Ray Revels, the Republican elections board member, later stated he did not know the other two board members had sought Mrs. Horton's resignation.

Alex Brock, state election board chairman, told the Robeson County board that state law forbids local boards from removing an appointee once that person has been sworn in.

The county elections board members, after getting Brock's opinion, withdrew their request for Mrs. Horton's resignation.

BECAUSE OF COLOR

I wanted to know you
And never got the chance
We were kept apart by a thing they called color
Such a shame
There was much we could have shared
There was much we could have learned from each other
And now...
All that is lost
In a thing called time
How cruel that we should lose each other in such a way
