PEMBROKE HARDWARE'S CURT LOCKLEAR CITED TO DISTRICT COURT

For Placing 11 Bicycles & 5 Tin Wagons on Sidewalk
In Violation of Ordinance 6-2002

PEMBROKE. Police Chief Vernon Oxendine, acting on a mandate from the Pembroke Town Council, recently cited Curt Locklear, owner of Pembroke Hardware, to District Court for "placing bicycles (11) and tin wagons (5) for sale on the sidewalk in the Town of Pembroke in violation of city ordinance 6-2002."

Locklear will appear March 10 (Friday) in Pembroke's District Court to answer the complaint. Locklear has retained counsel and has announced his intentions to contest the complaint.

The warrant was issued following recent council action when they decided to strictly enforce the ordinance which reads: "no person shall place for display or sale any goods, wares or merchandise of any kind upon any of the sidewalks of said town which shall extend out upon the sidewalks..."

Until the council action, acting on a motion by Councilman Bob Brewington, the ordinance had never been enforced; in fact, many merchants were not even aware such an ordinance existed.

The motion was passed over the strenuous objections of Councilman Sam Dial who said, "We have more important things to do than harass our merchants. We need to be looking for ways to help them, not hurt them..."

Locklear infers that he was singled out for action on the matter. He says that he was the only merchant approached by the town manager (McDuffie Cummings) "at the directions of a certain councilman". Said Locklear, in a recent interview, "Why was I singled out?"

Locklear also insists that he did not receive a letter that was purportedly sent to all merchants in town informing them that the ordinance was to be strictly enforced. Town Clerk Ruby Smith, said that she did not keep copies of letters sent but that she, to the best of her knowledge, sent letters to every merchant in town.

Mayor Reggie Strickland, Town Manager, McDuffie Cummings, and the rest of the town council are out of town attending a national meeting of the National League of Cities in Washington, D.C. and the Indian Unity Conference in Raleigh.

But one town official said that Locklear was singled out because he was the only merchant displaying goods for sale when the matter was brought before the council.

If the ordinance is strictly enforced, according to a local attorney, the ban would also include newspaper racks, shrubbery and "anything else that

Embezzlement in Pembroke

A former clerk at the Pembroke ABC store received a 10-year suspended sentence in Robeson County Superior Court, Thursday, for the embezzlement of $15,500 from that store.

Eugene Wilkes, a former state trooper, who was working full-time ABC clerk while attending Pembroke State pleaded guilty to the charge.

Wilkes admitted taking $15,500 from the store's cash register between July 1, 1975 and February 9, 1977.

Wilkes received his suspended sentence after he promised the court he would pay back the embezzled money. He presented Judge Robert Gavin with a cashier's check for $15,500 and $500 in cash. Judge Gavin said Wilkes' repayment of the money plus his behavior indicated he was apparently sorry for breaking the law.

Wilkes will also have to pay court costs plus $1,600 for extra accounting cost created by the missing funds.
