a Stewardship Fair at Presbyterian Church there.

In Pembroke, she received a tour of the work being done by the Pembroke Area Presbyterian Ministry under the leadership of Rev. John A. Robinson, Jr.

She was honored at a luncheon at Pembroke State University by local Presbyterian leaders and Pembroke dignatories, including Pembroke Mayor Pro tem, Sam Dial, who welcomed Mrs. Mosely to the Pembroke area. Also attending the luncheon were Rev. Bob Mangum, pastor of Prospect United Mothodist Church; Jim Paul, president of the Pembroke Chamber of Commerce; Charlie Perry, an elder of the program and a workshop, developed ciation's (LRDA) Executive Director, Kenneth R. Maynor and LRDA's CETA head, William E. Locklear were also special quests at the luncheon. They have worked closely with Robinson in developing a workshop.

Mrs. Mosely heard Robinson praised by Mayor pro tem, Sal Dial, "as one who has come to our town and made it a better place to live and work in ..."

Mrs. Mosely noted that the general assembly "affirmed a commitment to ministry to ethnic groups." She seemed excited about reports on work of the Pembroke ministry, including a youth

The Life and Times of Henry Berry Lowry'

Scheduled for Publication 'Sometime before X-mas'

NEW BOOK BY GARRY LEWIS BARTON

By Bruce Barton

PEMBROKE--After more than three years of reading everything "I could find about Henry Berry Lowry," Garry Lewis Barton is putting the finishing touches on his book titled "The Life and Times of Henry Berry Lowry." The tentative publishing date is 'sometime before Christmas."

The book examines everything ever written about Henry Berry Lowry and presents new "just discovered details" that make the book a veritable must for history buffs and all those who heard about "Henry Berry" while sitting on their front porches.

The book will sell for $5.95 plus taxes. In Robeson County, for instance, the book would cost $5.95 plus 24¢ tax for a total of $6.19. The book totals more than 100 pages of detail and exciting history about Henry Berry Lowry, his band of followers, the times before, during and after the Civil War. Interspersed throughout the book are interesting photographs. The book also includes a foreward by Lew Barton, father of the author; and an addendum by Bruce Barton, his brother.

Said Garry Lewis Barton, better known to readers of The Carolina Indian Voice as G.L. Barton, "I got mad every time I read something about Henry Berry Lowry. The book was always written by 'them'. "After writing a column for more than two years in The Carolino Indian Voice called, appropriately enough, "The Life and Times of Henry Berry Lowry," Barton decided to write his own book telling "the truth as I saw it and understood it." The book is definitely a reflection of the heritage of Garry Lewis Barton, a Lumbee Indian from Robeson County who also doubles as associate editor of The Corolino Indian Voice, a weekly newspaper published in Pembroke. North Carolina.

It is possible to place orders now for the book. Readers may reserve a copy of the book by sending $5.95 and the applicable tax to:

THE CAROLINA INDIAN VOICE P.O. Box 1075 broke, North Carolina 28372

Only a limited number of books are being printed. Those wishing to reserve a copy mould do so soon.

Students named to "Who's Who"

PEMBROKE-Thirty-two P.S.U. students have been named to the 1978-1979 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." These students have been selected as being among the nation's most outstanding campus leaders.

Campus nominating committees and editors of the annual directory have included the names of students based on their academic achievements, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and future potential.

They join an elite group of students selected from more than 1,000 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations. They will be included in the annual directory which has been published each year since 1934

Fifteen fields of study are represented, led by physical education with five, communicative arts with four, and English education, special education and sociology with three each. "Who's Who'' students at PSU hail from 18 different towns or cities ... Leading the lists are students from Lumberton (seven) and Fayetteville and Pembroke (four each). Students selected, their parents or spouses's names and residence, the student's year in school and major can be found on page 9.

elected to the Catawba College Sports Hall of Fame. The 1952 graduate of Catawba will be inducted into the Hall of Fame at ceremonies on campus school's annual homecoming event.

Dr. Oxendine, a member of the Temple faculty since 1959, is one of eight former Catawba athletes to be inducted in the Hall of Fame, which was begun two years ago and is sponsored by the Catawba Chiefs, an athletic booster organization.

As a student, Dr. Oxendine brought exceptional athletic ability to Catawba College and proceeded to excell in both athletics and academics. He played football, basketball, and baseball, winning conference honors, as well as all-state recognition. Upon his graduation, he was given the Aycock Athletic Medal as the best scholar-athlete in his senior class.

Following graduation, he played three years of professional baseball in the Pittsburgh Pirate farm system and then coached high school football, basketball, as well as American Legion baseball, 1955-57.

During this latter period, he was continuing his formal education, and beginning his professional career in the field of physical education and health. He earned his master's degree in physical education and educational ministration from Boston University in 1953. Six years later, he had earned his doctorate at Boston with additional ly funded research programs and has written two college textbooks and is currently writing an extensive review of Friday, November 3 on the eve of the the American Indian and his sports heritage.

> A national leader in psycho-motor learning, research and teaching, Dr. Oxendine is presently charting trends and directions world-wide through a Collge, will be guest speaker for the UNESCO program. He is also conducting a nation-wide study of general instruction in physical education in four-year institutions in the United States.

He is a leader in academic circles and on the national scene where the American Indian is involved. He was one of three mediators several years ago at Wounded Knee.

Dr. Oxendine has won distinguished alumnus awards from two institutions. He received the Distinguished Service Award from Catawba College in 1974 and this past September 24. Boston University honored him for his public service

He is married and with his wife and two children resides at 1052 Huntingdon Road in Abington, Pa.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Oxendine of Route 1, Pembroke, His brother, Ray, principal at East Montgomery High School, also was an outstanding athlete during his college days at Catawba. He graduated in 1962.
