our precious Democracy when we must put our heads together and resolve these issues. I for one look forward to working them out with you. All that I ask, as we debate and deliberate is that we consider not how our actions will be written as news today, but how they will be recorded in the history of tomorrow.

"Opportunities are expanding with each passing day. We cannot allow petty differences and personality clashes to interfere with this momentum. And we must bear in mind that differences cannot be allowed to erode the caliber of leadership essential to meeting our needs and goals. So I want to remind all of us that we have a heritage of colorful and vigorous le adership.

"Thomas Jefferson once said that perhaps the most important quality in be able to see the whole ground. As we chart the future of this town, there are many decisions to be made. Bob Brewington Bids to Retain Council Seat

Bob Brewington has announced his candidacy for re-election to the Pembroke Town Council.

Mr. Brewington released the following and their 4 children.

statement:

"I would like to take the opportunity to announce my candidacy for re-election to the Pembroke Town Council.

"The growth of our town and the service we receive as citizens is determined by the leadership that we elect to lead and govern.

"I believe strongly that the citizens should have a voice in the decisions that govern them, and also to be informed as to the decisions that are made.

"I will continue to support issues that are for the best interest of the citizens and the Town of Pembroke, and reject those that I feel are not.

"I will appreciate your support."

Second Train Fatanty in Pembroke

Following Council Action Monday Night

ke-The Pembroke Town Council at their regularly scheduled meeting Monday night, discussed the problem the town has had over the years with train fatalities. At that meeting Council man Sam Dial made a motion to enforce an ordanance reducing the speed of trains through town from 45 mph to 30 mph, 24 hours a day. The motion carried unanimously.

Alfred Dwight Oxendine was killed by a train reportedly traveling over the 45 mph speed limit Saturday night, although the amended ordinance noted that the speed limits (45 mph) was only enforced from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. (The Oxendine fatality occurred some time after 11 p.m. Saturday night) and was the latest of a number of train fatalities and accidents occurring within the town of Pembroke over the span of the last few years. Long time residents re-

Nash Lamb, an 18 year old college student, became the second fatality shortly after midnight Wednesday morning after being struck by a north bound Seaboard Coast Line Freight

Lamb, apparently disorientated, appeared to have driven onto the rail road of the east-west tracks, turning off Union Chapel Road in the general direction of the PSU campus, although there was no actual railroad crossing where he left the road and became entangled upon the railroad.

His car was struck, and the train reportedly traveled over 1500 feet before coming to a stop. The train carried Lamb's body some 175 feet. The collision occurred in the general vicinity membered, "At least five over the last of the railway station,

DR. GIVENS VISITS

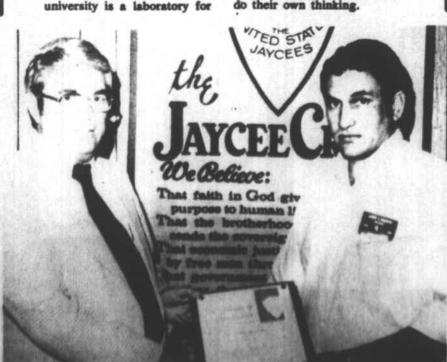

Dr. Paul R. Givens, the new chancellor of Pembroke State University, was the guest speaker at the Pembroke Jaycee meeting on September 19, 1979.

Dr. Givens, whose hobby is golf, discussed the general purposes of a university and the historical purposes of early universities up until the pre-both students and faculty where students develop physically, intellectually, and spiritually. A place where students can develop the momentum for self- education.

As to the future of Pembroke State University, Dr. Givens expressed the desire and need of the students to acquire the skills of speaking, listening, the yearning to want to listen, to artfully express their feelings in writing, and to do their own thinking.

The Pembroke Town Council heard from Mrs. Maude Jones, representing the Client's Council of the Lumbee River Legal Services, Inc. quartered in Pembroke.

Mrs. Jones questioned the council closely about the condition of the Pine Street Extension linking Locklear Court. Mrs. Jones noted, "The street is full of ruts and almost impossible to travel." She noted that many senior citizens and residents of other housing develop-ments use the road because Locklear Court is the home of the Administrative Office of the Housing Authority of

She also urged Mayor Reggle Strickland and the council to help residents of Locklear Court secure the services of I chool bus route. She remonstrated Why can't we get a stretch of road like this paved since it is so important to so many...?" She promised, "We (the client's council) plan to keep hammering away until something is done...we will make this a campaign issue... we want something done about this."

But it became fairly obvious that the mayor and council had heard about the roblem area before. "I can save you a peach," Mayor Strickland told Robert action, Lumber Strickland told Robert action, Lumber Strickland told Services" Community Relations Specialist, after a approached the pedium following hours attempting to straighten out this matter...although it is actually outside the corporate limits of the town." He explained, "Two property owners refuse to sign the right of way allowing access to the property."

Mayor Strickland added, "We are still working with the department of transportation and the district engineer. It is estimated that it will cost some $15,000 to complete the repairs, if the two property owners would agree to sign the right of way."

Councilman Sam Dial said, "I have worked hard on this matter, and we have done everything I know to do... maybe you could help us get something done on this...it will be all right if the client's council approaches the property owners and see if they will sign the right of way on this..."

Mayor Strickland, in response to a sestion from Mrs. Jones asking what they could do to help get the matter resolved, replied, "Call Commissioner Herman Dial."

Strickland thanked Mrs. Jones and the council for their concern and promised to work toward resolving the matter. In the meantime, he tructed Town Manager McDuffi minings to measure the distance in Legitlear Court to the area school and, if they are a mile away, to we ounty echool superintendent Purnell wett and ask for a school bus couts for

AND STREET LIGHTS AND OTHER MATTERS...

More on Pembroke Council Meeting

Town Manager McDuffie Cummings asked the town for a policy on installing street lights, noting that there are no clear cut directions, although Mayor Strickland noted that the policy. in the past, has been to install street lights at every other telephone pole.

But Councilman Milton Hunt injected quickly, in response to Cummings' query, "That ought to be left to us... that's in the area of politics...Let them contact the councilman in the area in

So, the matter was left "as is..."

The council also heard from Don Jacobs, a young Indian engineer, who was recently licensed by the state. Jacobs questioned the town's current engineers, Odell Associates from Greensboro, noting, "I feel they are giving you misleading information" concerning the town's 201 facilities plan now being developed. Jacobs said, "Overall, it seems to be a good plan but it needs to be aggressively pursued... your engineering firm seems to be quite busy."

layor Strickland noted, when intro-ing Jacobe, "He really wants to be

But Town Manager McDuffie Cummings recommended that the council approve Odell Associates as the town's agent in continuing to develop the 201 facilities plan, now ready for steps 2 and 3. Step one was development of the plan itself, a plan upgrading the town's treatment facility plant and rehabilitating existing lines and installation of new ones were needed. Step two wouldi be plans and specifications. Step three would be the actual construction.

The project, given a good chance of being approved, will cost a total of $1.8 million with the town's share being in the neighborhood of $550,000. State and federal monies would assume the lion's share of the cost. The town is continuing to look for further grants and exploring the possibility of floating a bond to make up the difference.

But Jacobs intimated that, if he wer the town's engineer, he could find the monies needed, possibly from PHA and other sources, paying particular attention to the town's peculiar population makeup. The town is predominately Indian.

The towns tabled action on passing the resolution continuing the 201 facilities plan and also tabled action on a requested resolution needed to continue
