Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green speaks at Lumberton Chamber of Commerce

Lt. Governor Jimmy Green spoke to the Lumberton Chamber of Commerce Tuesday at a dinner meeting at the Holiday Inn North. He was effusively introduced by Lumberton Mayor Furman K. Biggs and Hector McLean, a former state senator and chairman of the board of Southern National Bank.

Some muted rumblings were heard from some of the chamber members because, as they saw it, the political nature of Green's visit. Mayor Biggs laughingly called it "a non political" discourse and Green kept his remarks on a non partisan plane.

Green called for fiscal integrity and responsive legislation, forged by "government with citizen participation."

McLean called Green, in his introductory remarks, "a good friend of business...who believes in free enterprise from which this country has strayed too far." Green was also lauded by Mayor Biggs and McLean for his industrial promotion and the jobs he has helped bring to North Carolina.
