UPWARD BOUND PROGRAM BEGINS 10th SUMMER SUNDAY

For the 10th summer PSU will host a six-week Upward Bound program beginning Sunday.

Approximately 75 rising high school juniors and seniors will take part. The majority of these are first generation college material.

Funded by the U.S. Department of Education's Title IV program for three more years, Upward Bound participants must meet a certain financial criteria. The program is for all races.

The students live on campus and have a full schedule of activities. They have morning classes from 8 a.m. until noon, then take electives from 1-4 p.m. In the evenings, they participate in athletics such as swimming, basketball, volleyball, softball and tennis.

At the end of the six weeks, they are taken on a special trip July 24-27. This year's trip will be to Washington, D.C.

Tommy Swett, director of special programs at PSU who started the Upward Bound program at PSU from its infancy, is proud of achievements made by graduates of this program.

"William Sanderson, for example, attended PSU after finishing this program. After graduating from PSU, he entered the UNC Chapel Hill Medical School and is now entering his fourth year," said Swett.

Others finishing the program whom Swett mentioned included: Jeff Moore, PSU grad now in law school at UNC Chapel Hill; Zoe Ann Woodall, PSU grad now director of the Bryan Day-Care Center in Lumberton; Harry McMillan, a UNC Chapel Hill graduate now a physical therapist in Laurinburg; Joe Roberts, who just graduated from Davidson and is considering medical school; and Larry McCallum, a PSU graduate who just finished work on his master's degree and Roblin Baranhill, a Livingstone College graduate who is in graduate school at Georgia Tech.

Al McRae, assistant principal of Parkton High School, is working with Swett in coordinating the summer program. Among the classes to be taught to the students in the mornings will be: an Introduction to computer science, chemistry, mathematics (algebra), composition and reading (speech and comprehension).

Electives will include photography, typing, art, drama, and music.

Field trips will be taken to WRAL-TV in Raleigh and Research Triangle Park.

On the last day of regular classes, the students will be guests at an awards dinner and put on a talent show in the PSU cafeteria.

This all starts Sunday when students begin checking in at 3 p.m. and have orientation at 5 p.m. in the cafeteria.

Instructors for this summer include: mathematics--Ernie Locklear, teacher at Pembroke Senior High; communication skills--Julia Brayboy, teacher at Maxton High School; computer science--Roscoe Roberts, a PSU student in computer science from Warsaw, assisted by Annette Cummings, a PSU student in computer science from Maxton; chemistry--Ted Gerald, teacher at Lumberton High School, assisted by John Wayne Locklear, student at N.C. State University; and reading--Nella Mangum, PSU reading specialist.

Supervising the students will be Russell and Cheryl Powell, assisted by 12 college upperclassmen who will live in the dormitories with the students.

The PSU Upward Bound program is supported by the Summer Food Services Program for Children, sponsored by the State Department of Public Instruction.

90 ARRIVE SUNDAY FOR SUMMER SPECIAL PROGRAMS

Also arriving Sunday for a couple of weeks stay on campus are 90 public school students involved in special programs conducted at PSU by both the Robeson County Board of Education and the Lumberton Board of Education.

The county will have 60 of these, all fifth and sixth graders. These will be in two categories: (1) those taking part in the enrichment programs in language, mathematics, and reading; and (2) those who will be participating in the gifted and talented mathematics and science programs. Teaching the enrichment programs will be Sandra Graham, a teacher at Littlefield High School in the language area, and Dr. Kathy Sullivan, a PSU professor in the mathematics and reading areas.

Instructors in the gifted and talented mathematics and science programs will be Jacqueline Thompson, math teacher for Lumberton City Schools; and Dr. Peter Walsh, science professor of PSU.

This county program last 2 1/2 weeks.

The Lumberton Board of Education will have 30 students from the fifth through the 11th grades participating in its enrichment program which lasts two weeks. Instructors will be: Tim Hunt, science teacher from Pembroke Junior High; Katrina Locklear, language teacher from Lumberton City Schools; and Benford Lowry, mathematics teacher from Pembroke Senior High.

CHANNEL 3 RECEIVES INPUT IN EXPANDING ITS COVERAGE

WWAY-TV in Wilmington, which recently completed a 2,000 foot tower to expand its coverage in southeastern North Carolina, had its top officials meet with several Robeson County people for ideas on future stories.

Chosen to meet with them were Adolph Dial, PSU Chairman of American Indian Studies; Paul Graham, Robeson County Manager; Frank Lay, executive director of the Lumberton-Robeson County Chamber of Commerce; Gene Smith, of Southeast Production Credit Assn.; Cathy Stone, WTSB news; and Gene Warren, PSU public information director.

George Allen is station manager. WWAY-TV in forming a Carolina News Network with stations in Raleigh, Greensboro, and Charlotte. This means news of this area on a continuing basis will be on those stations too.

BRAYBOY RECEIVES STATE APPOINTMENT

Dr. Ray Brayboy, Principal of Carver Middle School at Laurel Hill, has been appointed to the State Evaluation

Committee on Teacher Education for a three-year term beginning July 1. Brayboy is a graduate of Pembroke State. The State Evaluation Committee makes reports and recommendations to the State Board regarding the approval of programs and institutions for teacher education in the state. Work includes reviewing reports of college/university visitation committees, appraising institutions and programs in terms of compliance with standards and making recommendations to the State Board. Congratulations Dr. Brayboy.

Tommy Swett...Ready to direct 10th straight "Upward Bound" program at PSU starting Sunday.

Union Principal Honored

The faculty of Union Chapel School recently honored the principal during National Bosses Week. Mr. Wade C. Hunt, principal of the school for two years now, was recognized for his dedication and outstanding leadership.

Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria. Mr. Hunt received a gift from the school faculty which was presented by a fourth grade teacher, Mrs. Marianne Jarves. She is shown above making the presentation to Mr. Hunt.

PEMBROKE JAYCEES BOARD MEETING HELD

The Pembroke Jaycees held their monthly board meeting Tuesday night. The president, Larry Jacobs, began the meeting with the invocation. Then he turned the floor over to Greg Cummings who had the task of giving the officers orientation to the new officers. William Lowry, Internal vice President, plans to head up a membership drive for the month of June and he also has a club house cleaning scheduled. Larry Rogers, External Vice President, has a kite contest for the month of June and he plans to get the grass cutting on the way. If anyone in the community has need of their grass being cut and you are not able to do it yourself, please contact Larry Rogers at 521-8026 or any member of the Jaycees.

David Lowery, Ways and Means Vice President, has the task of raising money for the operation of the club and the support of every organization that the Jaycees help to support each year, such as the Cystic Fibrosis, Muscular Dystrophy, the Burn Center at Chapel Hill, the Boys Home at Lake Waccamaw, visits to the Odum Home in Pembroke and especially the needy families at Christmas time.

Jimmy Goins and Carlton Dial are co chairmen of a gold raffle to be held in the month of June with the proceeds going to the needy families at Christmas.

The club wants to get an early start on the needy families project.

President Larry Jacobs stated that the Pembroke community has always been very helpful in supporting the Jaycees and he wants the public to know that when you help the Pembroke Jaycees, you are helping your community and all of the Pembroke Jaycees thank you for your support.

The meeting ended with Carlton Dial leading the board in the Jaycee Creed.

Post cards and postal cards are not the same thing. A postal card is one that has a stamp already printed on it.
