

Residents of Robeson County were among over 2,000 people from across the state who attended the Kick-off of Lauch Faircloth's campaign for Governor of North Carolina in Raleigh, July 25th. Faircloth said he would use his business and government experience to improve the economy moving, and avoid higher taxes. The Sampson County native has served in the Administrations of three North Carolina Governors.

Tobacco Markets Open

The figure compared unfavorably with a preliminary figure from the South Carolina side of the belt—$144.59 (compared with $147.78 last year).

Preliminary figures for the belt as a whole showed an average price of $142.52, down $3.67 from last year's $146.19.

About 24 percent of the golden leaf in the belt, which takes in seven markets in the state's southeast corner, went under loan to the farmer-owned Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. This almost equaled the 24.8 percent figure of last year.

Stabilization is a farmer's cooperative that buys tobacco that fails to attract at least a penny more than the support price. Higher Stabilization receipts are bad news for farmers, who must pay higher fees to absorb carrying costs. U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block offered a treatment for the ailing support program this year by freezing the price support at $169.90 per 100 pounds. Speaking to an overflow crowd at Cooperative Warehouse, U.S. Rep. Charles G. Rose III, D-N.C., expressed confidence in the effects of the freeze.

The freeze, he said, "sends a signal that the American grower is going to be flexible and recapture his share of the American dollar."

In an interview, Rose underlined what he labeled his "mild optimism."

"There are some people looking for bad news about tobacco, but I think of it more the way Mark Twain used to say—that rumors of the death of tobacco are greatly exaggerated," he said.

John G. Richardson, agricultural extension chairman for Robeson County, similarly praised the freeze. "The thing I would question, considering we're just a penny above the support price, is what type of situation we would have been in if the supports had not been frozen," he said.

PEMBROKE KIWANIS CLUB

Program Chairman Bill Oxendine presented Attorney Arnold Locklear who described the community service aspect of punishment while driving impaired.

The provision says liability is not involved unless there is intentional wrong doing.

Community Service involves three levels of punishment.

- (1) 72 hours of community service and he must be in prison for 72 hours and not drive for 90 days.
- (2) 48 hours of community or 48 hours of jail.
- (3) 24 hours in jail or 24 hours of community service.

All of these depend upon judicial ruling. Groups which can use these participants must apply to the court. Supervision is worked out with the judge and the group using the community service. If an individual fails to work, he is given an active jail sentence and he could serve up to one year in confinement.

Visiting at the meeting was Town Manager McDuffie Cummings. Reginald Strickland, who is recovering from heart by-pass surgery, was granted a leave of absence.

Plans are still going forward for the Charter Night of the new West Robeson Kiwanis Club to be held at the Old Foundry Restaurant at 7 p.m. Thursday, August 25th.

Presiding was President Ray Lowry; pianist, Ira Pate Lowry; invocation, Ed Teets.

The word "boycott" is from the name of an Irish land agent who was the first known boycott victim.

Richard Wagner invented the technique of leitmotiv, or "leading theme," in opera—a brief melodic phrase to symbolize the return of a certain idea, situation or person.

The human tongue has four types of taste buds... discriminating between sweet, sour, salty and bitter. Each cannot taste sweetness.
