by Herbert Locklear

Reverend Charles P. Locklear has recently accepted the position of Pastor of the South Broadway Baptist Church, located at 211 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Maryland.

For the past five years, Reverend Locklear has been Pastor of the New Bethel Baptist Church in Clinton, North Carolina, where he made his home with his wife Gwendolyn and son Jonathan, age 3.

Reverend Locklear has shared some of his past experiences which led him to become a born-again Christian, then into the ministry and subsequently into Pastoral work.

As related by Reverend Locklear he was out for night of partying with friends on March 21, 1971. Their movements took he and his party past Harpers Ferry Church where Reverend Michael Cummings was conducting a revival. According to Reverend Locklear he felt such an attraction toward the church he had his party to stop the car. He went into the church and accepted Christ. He has been faithful to that commitment since that time.

Sam Dial
candidacy for Mayor of Pembroke

Sam Dial

Sam Dial, long-time member of the Pembroke Town Council, announces his candidacy for the mayorship of Pembroke.

In making his announcement, Dial released the following statement:

"The people of Pembroke have been very supportive of me during my long tenure as a Pembroke Councilman. I have served under the administration of 3 mayors during my tenure: Earlie B. Maynor, Reggie Strickland the present mayor, James A. "Pete" Jacobs. Each one of these mayors served two terms.

My record speaks for itself. I have supported whatever was beneficial to the taxpayers of Pembroke—public housing, street improvements, community development, etc. I have always tried to be a voice for the people. It is you, the voter, who have elected me and I have always tried to be a voice for the people. I have always tried to speak in your behalf.

"It is time for us to start looking toward the future. We need to gear ourselves to meet the demands we are faced with relative to growth. I will work closely with the local industrial commission and the State Dept. of Commerce to bring industry into our town which will provide jobs for people. If elected, I will strive to show the taxpayers where their dollars are spent and to insure they go where they are needed most and in a manner that will allow you to see their return.

"I am humbled by the support shown me over the years as a councilman and earnestly solicit your support for Mayor Nov. 8. Your vote will be greatly appreciated."

Special Study conducted

Dr. Grayson Noley, Director of Native American Programs at Penn State University where several local Lumbees have successfully completed graduate studies at both the masters and doctoral levels, has completed a study entitled, An Evaluation of Instruction and Educational Programs for American Indian Students in the Robeson County Schools. Although the study was commissioned by the Title IV Part A Indian Education Project, the generalizations have applicability to the total instructional program for all students in the Robeson County Schools.

Dr. Noley based his findings, conclusions and recommendations on in-depth review of project records of the Indian Education Project, school district records and reports, and district test data combined with extensive interviews with community representatives and leaders including school board members, school principals, members of the Title IV Indian Education Project, representatives of Indian officials and tribal representatives and organizational leaders and surveys administered to 629 teachers, 289 teacher aides, all district principals and assistant principals, 104 special programs personnel and all school guidance counselors.

FLOYD WESTERMAN

DIXIE HARRISON

In a United States governmental policy to assimilate Indian people, Floyd was one of many Indian children taken out of family homes and placed in boarding schools. He spent his entire childhood there.

He taught himself to play the guitar, went to college, and began singing professionally in the 60's. In 1970 his first recording was released, an album entitled "Custer Died for Your Sins". In 1982 Floyd recorded this album and is now producing it in the form of cassette tapes under the label of Red Crow Productions.

His style of music is country folk. He prefers this type of expression to address the colonial oppression that hindered the lifestyle of his people. He survived the regimentality forced upon him throughout his childhood education, and with a clear view of what is right and what's wrong for Indian people. Floyd dedicated his life to maintaining cultural and traditional teachings. He believes in the concept of the sacred circle, survival of Indian languages, respect for the land, and sovereignty of indigenous people of the Western Hemisphere. Audiences here, in Europe, and other countries receive him so well he is often referred to as "ambassador" and "the giant of Indian music". No matter what song he sings.

When one thinks of the traditional Indian one usually thinks of feathers, beads, tommy hawks and scalping. Perhaps one thinks of wild west raids, bareback ponies, and loin-cloths; but rarely does one think of Indians as country singers and professional performers.

Contrary to some thinking there are many talented Indian performers. Two such entertainers will perform Friday, September 30, at 8:00 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center in honor of North Carolina State Indian Heritage Week.

Floyd Westerman, well known for his traditional ballads depicting the years of hardships of the American Indian, will share the stage with Dixie Harrison, a Cherokee Sioux Country singer from Arkansas.

Floyd Westerman, 46, is of the Sisseton, Wahpeton Dakota (Sioux) Nation. Among his grandfathers of the Plains, are "Red Crow", "Sleepy Eye", "Good Thunder", "Red Day", "Red Wing", and "Little Crow". The listener is never left unmoved.
