Ideas For Homeowners
Do-It-Yourself Kitchen Projects
 A hanging pot and pan rack is a good solution to a "storage short" kitchen or for the cook who likes cooking gear where it is handy and visible, experts say. What's more, it can be easy to make yourself.
 Make the rack out of 2x4s joined together with 1/4 inch carriage bolts about four inches long. Hangers for utensils can be brass or made of 1/4 inch dowels set at an upward angle. Adjust height of the rack so utensils will be within easy reach. A solid platform of 3/4 inch plywood can be added to take those seldom used articles.
 The rack can be suspended from the ceiling with either toggle bolts or by running lag bolts into ceiling joists.
 A breakfast bar could be a perfect place to eat those rushed, on-the-go meals. According to the experts at The Stanley Works, a leading maker of quality hand tools, it can be easy to construct your own.
 Tuck a breakfast bar in a corner, under a window or wherever there is four or five feet of space. The counter top can be made of 3/4 inch plywood painted or made of butcher board or plastic laminate. Secure back of top of wall by first nailing 1x3 into wall by studding and then screwing back of countertop to this. Ends can be secured in the same fashion, if counter is set between adjoining walls. If not, use brackets made of 2x4s. Let them run from underside close to front edge to wall just above baseboard. Easier yet, use a solid plywood end support.

IT NEVER FAILS

BUT GEORGE—WHY SHOULD HE WANT TO STEAL A BASE—ARE THEY VALUABLE? AND THE PLAYER THAT HIT THE BALL OVER THE FENCE—WON'T HE HAVE TO PAY FOR IT? AND WHY DID YOU YELL FOR HIM TO RUN HOME—DOES HIS WIFE WANT HIM?

IF ONLY MY CAR WOULD RUN AS STEADY AS HER MOUTH!

THAT GUY'S GOT MORE CONTROL THAN THE PITCHER! HE OUGHT TO SHOVE THE PROGRAM DOWN HER THROAT!

SHE'S ALREADY ASKED HIM MORE QUESTIONS THAN MY WIFE DOES WHEN I GET HOME AT 4 A.M.

THE NEXT TIME HE TAKES A DAME TO THE BALL-GAME, HE'LL STAY HOME!

DID YOU KNOW?
 The next time you ride—or just admire—a beautiful horse, the chances will be better that the animal is a healthy one.
 Horses can be healthier thanks to modern veterinary medicine.
 Horse owners can now control gastrointestinal roundworms and stomach bots in their animals, including pregnant mares, thanks to a new antiparasitic agent available in the form of an oral paste. Marketed by MSD/AVET, a division of Merck & Co., Inc., the medication controls the arterial larval and adult stages of bloodworms, a major cause of colic, and the oral as well as the gastric stages of bots.
 Called EQUALAN, it can be obtained from veterinarians. It is convenient to use and particularly suited for parasite control in any horse where other methods of treatment may present problems.
 Packaged for administration by mouth, the tube plunger is notched and has a locking ring so that a precise dose can be delivered to a horse of any weight, up to 1,250 pounds.
