FOUR DIRECTORS OF CO-OP NOMINATED FOR RE-ELECTION

Four directors of Lumbee River Electric Membership Corporation have been nominated for re-election to the cooperative's 12-member board.

The four, selected by Lumbee River EMC's nominating committee, are J.W. Hunt, Timothy Strickland, James Hardin and Gus Bullard.

Members of the rural electric cooperative will elect directors at Lumbee River EMC's 46th Annual Meeting, which will be held Tuesday, Oct. 7, at Pembroke State University's Performing Arts Center.

Lumbee River EMC provides electricity to nearly 25,000 homes and businesses in Robeson, Scotland, Hoke and Cumberland counties. Persons who have accounts with Lumbee River EMC are members of the cooperative.

Hunt, currently president of the board of directors, represents the cooperative's District 2, the southernmost part of Robeson County, including Fairmont. Strickland, board secretary, represents District 4, northwestern Robeson County, including Red Springs and Pembroke. Hardin represents District 8, Cumberland County. Bullard holds an at-large seat on the board.

The nominating committee's selections, made Thursday, officially open Lumbee River EMC's election process. Petitions for nominating other co-op members for board seats will be accepted through Sept. 11. Candidates may also be nominated from the floor of the annual meeting. All candidates must meet the eligibility requirements in the cooperative's by-laws and live in the district they would represent.

Directors are elected to three-year terms. Four of Lumbee River EMC's 12 board seats come up for election at each annual meeting.

N.C. MOTHER'S ASSOC. SEARCHING FOR NOMINEES

The North Carolina Mother's Association is searching for qualified nominees to represent the State's mothers. Any club of organized group may nominate a mother it wishes to honor in this way. She must be at least forty-five years of age, and her youngest child must be at least fifteen years old. The deadline for receipt of nominations is December 15, and application blanks may be obtained by writing to Mrs. Katherine Parrish, 681 Sorell Street, Cary, NC 27511. All nominees will be honored at the Association's Annual Meeting held in mid-February in Raleigh. At that time the State Mother of the Year will be announced.

Southern States Membership Meeting To Be Held

The Southern States Cooperative local annual membership meeting for Southern States-Pembroke will be held October 2, 1986. This decision was made by the manager and some local farmer-members at a recent annual planning meeting held July 31, 1986.

This year's annual meeting will feature reports on operations of both Southern States Cooperative and the local dealership. How the cooperative is part of the farmer's "growing team" (comprised of both the co-op's employee force and each of its owner-members) will be emphasized, as well as how Southern States itself is growing. The regional farm cooperatives recently expanded into its sixth state-North Carolina.

In addition there will be elections, or reports on elections, and other business matters at the session. Attending the planning committee meeting were Roy Lacy Cummings, manager of Southern States-Pembroke and Joe Johnson a member of the Southern States regional office staff at Raleigh, NC.

Also at the session were the following members: Mr. Lycour Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. Delton Locklear, Mr. and Mrs. Louis English, Mr. and Mrs. William Dial, Mr. W.B. Mitchell, Mr. William K. Locklear, Ms. Rose Marie Locklear, Mr. and Mrs. Hartley J. Oxendine, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Adlia Strickland, Mrs. Ludalia L. Cummings and Mr. Johnnie Elmore.

Handicapped to be Recognized in Fairmont

Fairmont will be the setting for the fourth presentation of the Mayor's Committee for the Handicapped, coordinated by the Public Awareness Committee.

On September 14, 1986 at 5:00 p.m. Dr. Larry Schultz, associate professor of education at Pembroke State University, will be the guest speaker at the First Baptist Church in Fairmont. Emphasized will be the knowledge and pertinent information for the public in general, and friends and family should do for themselves and handicapped individuals.

Dr. Schultz holds a Ph.D. from the University of South

Florida with emphasis in Exceptional Child Education. His extensive professional experience includes Master Teach for the moderately emotionally disturbed, special education teacher for the mildly handicapped, and working in self concept in the home.

The stress of Dr. Schultz's address will be in the self concept, increased confidence, alleviation of anxiety and increased self expression which many handicapped individuals have difficulty with. The public's attitudinal barriers which occurs in many homes, schools and social happenings can have great negative impacts on these individuals.

Introduction will be made by Dr. Joy Johnson, Pastor of the First Baptist Church and in attendance it is hoped will be handicapped individuals and their families and classmates. The church is located across the street from Hardee's and one should turn at the Pizza Place. Refreshments will be served.

This informal presentation is free to the public and questions will be taken at the end of Dr. Schultz's address.

Please mark your calendars now!

Pembroke Rescue Squad Appreciation Week

Pembroke Rescue Squad will hold an appreciation supper Friday, September 5, 1986 at Pembroke Junior High School beginning at 7 p.m. Guest speaker will be Mr. Tommy Harrelson. Special music will be provided by the Victory Singers, an inspiring new gospel group under the direction of Ms. Elizabeth (Liz) Locklear. Tickets may be purchased at the door for $25.00 per person for an evening of good food and great entertainment.

Saturday, September 6, open house will be held at the Pembroke Rescue Squad Base on the Union Chapel Road between the hours of 12:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

The squad is composed of men and women trained in emergency care. It is strictly a volunteer organization as well as non-profit. No member receives any pay for their duties and the organization does not charge for services rendered. The squad's source of survival comes from donations, car collections, plate sales and other fund raising activities. This money is used for light and phone bills, insurances, maintenance of vehicles, medical supplies and equipment, maintenance and upkeep of building.

Members purchase their own uniform, pay dues, furnish their own gear, attend classes and meetings as well as pull duty several times a month. They assist local police with parades, black outs due to bad weather, and traffic control for special events.

Without the help of local churches and the community the Pembroke Rescue Squad would have to close its doors. We'd like to take this opportunity to thank those who have supported us through encouragement, as well as finances. Each donation helps up the effort to serve you. Please come and join in our appreciation supper and visit us during our open house. Remember "Help us to help you."

Officials reviewing health risks in Scotland waste plant proposal

State officials are checking for possible health risks to surrounding communities if a hazardous-waste treatment plant were to be built beside the Laurinburg-Maxton Airport in Scotland County.

The risk assessment is the final hurdle for Maryland-based GSX Services Inc., said William L. Meyer, head of the N.C. Department of Human Resources' solid and hazardous-waste management branch. He said a preliminary decision on the permit would be announced Nov. 17.

If approved, a public hearing would be held in January and a final decision probably would be made in March, officials said. Ellen Pulaski, chief engineer for the state reviewing a proposal by GSX, said Thursday that the company had met or exceeded requirements on a state checklist for hazardous-waste storage, treatment and disposal. GSX also has passed a background investigation, Ms. Pulaski said.

Some government officials and residents of Scotland and Robeson counties have opposed the plant and are asking the state to reject the application. About 50 residents voiced their opposition before the Governor's Waste Management Board Aug. 22. The residents said the water they use is some of the most clean in the state.

The company has applied for a permit to treat up to 400 chemicals. Under the GSX proposal, the plant would treat the waste and discharge it into the Laurinburg-Maxton wastewater treatment plant. From there, it would be discharged into the Lumber River.

But North Carolina has no regulatory levels for disposal into drinking water sources for about half of the chemicals, Mrs. Pulaski said.

State officials are evaluating treatment processes and assessing the health risks for each chemical the company proposes to handle.

Meyer said the state would determine at what levels each chemical could be discharged into the Lumber River and give residents who drink the water no more than a one-in-a-million chance of contracting a disease.

He said conservative standards would be set using "the best published data."
"This is the first of its kind in that this is a very extensive facility, a very large facility and a state-of-the art facility," Mrs. Pulaski said. "Most treatment facilities use one treatment process, while GSX is proposing to treat a diversity of chemicals using seven different processes."

According to the permit application, the facility initially would treat 50,000 gallons of industrial and institutional chemicals and chemical byproducts each day, with a maximum capacity of 500,000 gallons a day.

The application says GSX will not accept any explosive, shock-sensitive, radioactive, PCB, dioxin-containing, infectious, pathogenic (disease-producing) or unidentified wastes. There are no plans for landfills or incinerator units at the facility, and wastes will be on the site for fewer than 90 days, the permit application says.
