Voters Urged to Vote For Constitutional Amendment

Dear Editor:

On November 4, the voters of Robeson County will have the opportunity to vote for the future of North Carolina and for higher education in our state by voting for Constitutional Amendment #1.

The amendment will permit the state's 38 independent colleges and universities to use tax-exempt financing to build and renovate campus facilities. And it won't cost taxpayers a cent.

The Committee on Constitutional Integrity has opposed some amendments in the past, but is firmly in favor of Constitutional Amendment #1 on the November ballot because the amendment represents a positive change in our laws.

The committee joins the UNC Board of Governors, the North Carolina Citizens for Business and Industry, Governor Jim Martin, Lt. Governor Bob Jordan, State Treasurer Harlan Boyles, U.S. Senate candidates Jim Broyhill and Terry Sanford, and other leaders in government, education and business in urging Robeson County voters to approve this amendment.

Amendment #1 is good for North Carolina. It is good for higher education. It is about the future of our state.

Sincerely,

Tom Gilmore Chairman

Voting for statesmanship
Voting should be treated as a "civic sacrament." The practice of self-interest voting is counter-productive to the health of our nation. Candidates who use the "pie-in-the-sky" method to "buy" block votes jeopardize the integrity of our national elective system and undermine the role of statesmanship. This November, vote for the good of the country, the well-being of all citizens, not just self-interests. Inform yourself. Vote conscience, not pocketbook. Be a statesman yourself. Let's put true statesmen in office for our nation's good.
