FIRST ACTING PRESIDENT OF INSTITUTION REVISITS

When PSU recently dedicated its new Special Collections

Room of its Mary Livermore Library, an elderly couple from Raleigh attended.

Their names: Dr. Owens H. Browne, 87, and his wife, the former Mary Martin Johnson, 86.

They used to be the First Family of what is now PSU because for two years (1940-41 and 1941-42) Dr. Browne was head of the school. In his first year his title was superintendent. In his second year, it was changed to acting president.

"I came here in 1937 to teach chemistry, mathematics and biology," said Browne. "A week before school opened in 1940, Mr. G.G. Maughon, who was then serving as superintendent, suddenly resigned. I was called in to replace 1940. Mr. G.G. Maughon, who was then serving as superintendent, suddenly resigned. I was called in to replace him."

The Brownes left Pembroke State after the 1941-42 academic year to go to Lenoir Rhyne College where he taught for eight years. He went next to St. Mary's College in Raleigh where he taught for 18 years before retiring.

They were very interested in attending festivities at the Mary Livermore Library because Browne hired the woman in whose honor the library was named.

"Miss Livermore had served as a missionary to China and was retired here, doing community work," said Browne. "She had to have some visible means of support, so I got the idea, "Why not hire her as a dean of women and instructor of Bible?" We had no dean of women at that time."

Miss Livermore served in those capacities until retiring from PSU in 1951. She passed away in 1965, two years before the completion of the library named for her.

An indication of the passage of time since the Brownes resided on the FSU campus is this: Only two buildings-Old Main and the old gym-are facilities that were here when they were the First Family of PSU. Old Main was built in 1923 and renovated in 1979, and the old gym was constructed in 1939.

To the Brownes the old gym was "the new gym" of that era, being built during their tenure at Pembroke State.

Records show the enrollment in Browne's first year as chief administrator was 130. The next year it dropped to 96. During World War II when many of the young men were in the services, the school's errollment grew smaller.

Reminded that this year the PSU enrollment was a recordbreaking 2,481 and seeing the spectacular growth of the campus. Dr. Browne used the term: "Explosion! There has been an explosion of growth."

Mrs. Browne described the progress of the institution as "just wonderful!"

This is not the first time the Brownes have returned to the campus. There were here in 1976 to see the outdoor drama, "Strike at the Wind," in its inaugural year. They have been several times since then, keeping

Oxendine, who served as dean of the school during their time at PSU. "Betty was just a little tot who then lived next door to us on campus," said Mrs. Browne. (Note: Betty Oxendine Mangum now lives in Raleigh where she is director of the Division of Indian Education for the State Department of Public Instruction.)

"Yes, where you now have high-rise buildings, we had woods," said Browne. "When I was a teacher and administrator here, I never dreamed the school would grow to such proportions. Amazing!"
Browne, a native of Urbana, Ill., and Mrs. Browne, a Raleigh native, have outlived three of the four chief executives who succeeded them and are parents of two children and 10 grandchildren. Time has been good to them since their days at PSU.

PSU GRADS ALREADY HAVE OPPORTUNITIES LINED UP Dr. Diane Jones, PSU director of career planning and placement, says many of PSU's graduating seniors already have jobs or have been accepted in various graduate schools or the military.

PSU's Annual To Have Co-Editors For The 1987-88 Academic Year

For the first time in at hast two decades, Pembroke State University's annual, "The Indianhead," will have co-editors during the 1987-88 acade, ic year.

They will be Amy Killough, a rising senior from Hamlet, and David Dean, a rising junior from St. Pauls.

During the past year Killough has served as historian of the annual, while Dean has been associate editor. PSU's annual has won national honors for the last several years.

"We have really had equal duties in the past and equal experience so we think we have equal contributions to make to the annual next year," they said.

The fact that they both commute to school will make it easier if they share the responsibilities, the two students said.

For those of us in the country who love fresh local grown vegetables the opportunity to wake up those taste buds is now here. The Robeson County Farmers Market will open Saturday, May 16 at 7.30 a.m. If the past tradition is followed, there will be a great abundance of some of the finest vegetables available in the county.

The season may still be a little early for a great variety of vegetables, but there should be plenty of the earlier planted vegetables, but there should be plenty of the earlier planted vegetables available. As the season progresses, you will be probably be able to find virtually all types of vegetables from cabbage and squash to broccoli and eggplant.

Due to the greater becamend for their storage space, Agri-Supply on Highway 211 Bypass will no longer be able to provide a location for this market. They, and their former owners, Farm and Family Center, should be recognized for their past assistance and cooperation in establishing the market and providing for its great success. Without their the Farmers Market as we know it today would not seen possible.

the Farmers Market as we know it was, mean possible.

Ane Farmers Market will now be located adjacent to Southern Hardware on Godwin Avenue. This is the former Lowe's location across from Jerry-Ann Nursery. Because of the concern of Southern Hardware for the local vegetable producers and in an effort to continue the tradition of this market, they are making their outside facilities available to the producers and the public at no cost. As you visit the market, be sure to stop by their business and express your thanks to them. While there, if you see any of those gardening, sports, or hardware items that you need, I am sure that their courteous staff will be glad to assist you.

When the Farmers Market was first established by the Robeson County Agricultural Extension Service in the late seventies, the purpose was two-fold. First, to provide the opportunity for small scale vegetable producers to have an outlet for selling their products to the public. Secondly, to provide the opportunity for those many citizens in the county who are unable to grow their own vegetables to have a convenient location where they could purchase a great variety of local grown fresh produce at reasonable prices. The success of this market since its inception well demonstrates that both of these purposes have been met.

For those who would like to purchase local grown produce, I encourage you to visit the Farmers Market. I am sure you will be pleased with the quality and variety of produce that is offered. In addition, the friendly and courteous nature of all the vendors will be a pleasant surprise. Don't be surprised if you spend more time visiting than you do buying.

For those who are producing more vegetables in your gardens than your families and friends can use, this is a good opportunity for you to turn that excess into cash. The market will operate in this location every Wednesday and Saturday beginning at 7:30 a.m. until early fail. There will be a small charge of one dollar for each vendor for the use of these facilities. For those using the market on a continual basis a season pass can be purchased for $25. This money is paid to the Farmers Market Association and all proceeds will be used only for the promotion and improvement of the market. Even though anyone is allowed to sell at this market at any time it is operating, it would be to your advantage to call the Extension Service at 738-811 or contact Mr. Truett West, the manager of the market, in order to reserve a prime location. Only food items and cut flowers produced within the county by the growers can be sold. No commercial vendors will be allowed to participate.

growers can be soon to commented.

For additional information about the Farmers Market, contact your Agricultural Extension Service by calling or 1738 8111 or visit their office in the O.P. Owens Building or Highway 72, west of Lumberton.

See you at the Formers Market.
