NATIVE AMERICANS TO CELEBRATE 10,000 YEAR HISTORY

North Carolina's Native Americans will celebrate their 10,000-year heritage when they observe Indian Heritage Week September 20-26.

The eighth annual state-wide observance will begin officially Sept. 20 with the Indian Heritage Week Festival at Town Creek Indian Mound near Mount Gilead. Miss Indian North Carolina will be crowned during the 2 to 5 p.m. affair, which will also feature speakers, Indian dancers, Indian arts and crafts, demonstrations and Indian traders.

At tribal centers and Indian organizations throughout the state, powwows, open houses and other activities are planned to call attention to the history and contributions of N.C. Indians.

Earlier in the month, on Sept. 12, the Triangle Native American Society will sponsor an Indian Heritage Gala at the Holiday Inn, Hillsborough Street, Raleigh and on Sept. 19, the Metrolina Native American Association will sponsor the Billy Mills 5K Fun Run in Charlotte.

"Native American heritage in North Carolina lives through the presence of 65,000 Indian people spread throughout 99 of the 100 counties," said N.C. Department of Administration Secretary James S. Lofton. North Carolina has the largest Indian population east of the Mississippi River.

"Their history is imbedded in the landscape," Lofton continued. "Eleven counties bear original Indian names while hundreds of waterways, towns and natural sites are identified by words of Indian origin. The permanence of Indian influence in North Carolina is evident."

North Carolina has six tribes—Cherokee, Coharie, Haliwa-Saponi, Lumbee, Meherrin and Waccamaw—Siouan—and three major urban concentrations in Charlotte, Fayetteville and Greensboro. Indian Heritage Week is being coordinated by the N.C. Commission of Indian Affairs in the N.C. Department of Administration.

The commission is the only state government agency with the specific responsibility of addressing the needs of North Carolina Indians. Through its field offices and varied programs, the commission works to assure the rights of Indians to pursue their cultural, social and religious traditions and to increase economic and educational opportunities.

For a schedule of Indian Heritage Week activities or for more information, contact the N.C. Commission of Indian Affairs, P.O. Box 27228, Raleigh, N.C. 27611, or call (919) 733-5998.

Magnolia Drops Football For 1987

Magnolia High School, a member of the Lumber River 1-A Conference, has dropped football for the 1987 school year.

Principal Noah Woods cited lack of participation as the reason for the decision, noting that Magnolia was averaging less than 10 players per practice session.

Woods said the school would field a junior varsity team this year and would offer a junior high program, adding he hoped the school would be able to offer varsity football next season.

The other members of the Lumber River Conference are attempting to fill the new open date on their football schedules with a replacement game. Allen Faircloth, principal at St. Pauls High School, said some members of the league had been successful in finding new opponents. He added that others, including his school, were still looking for teams to play.

RON SANDERS...PSU's new Baptist campus minister.

Ron Sanders, who for the past six years has been the Baptist campus minister at both Illinois State University and Illinois Wesleyan University (they are three-fourths of a mile apart), is the new Baptist campus minister at Pembroke State University.

Sanders, 32, a native of Louisville, Ky., earned his B.S. in Murray State University in Murray, Ky., majoring in geology with minors in chemistry and biology. He received his Master of Divinity in pastoral care and counseling at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.

From 1979-80, Sanders did his Baptist campus ministry internship at Western Carolina University.

"I have always wanted to come back to North Carolina since being at Western Carolina University," said Sanders. "I like the beaches, coast and mountain areas of North Carolina. I also consider working with the North Carolina Baptist State Convention staff a real plus."

Sanders says his goal is "to be an authentic communicator of the Good News of Jesus Christ."

He had these comments about Pembroke State University's Baptist Student Union, called "The House," which is located across from the Performing Arts Center on the Red Springs Road. "One of my goals is to get more of our activities to move on the other (PSU) side of Red Springs Road. I also want to work more with commuters and have some kind of relationship with faculty and staff."

Sanders believes it will be a big advantage that the James B. Chavis University Center, which is close to the Baptist Student Union, is available this fall. Students will have more accessibility to the Student Union because of the increased student population in the direction.

Sanders is married to the former Better Jo Ward of Murray, Ky. They are parents of three children: Judson Lee, 5; Charles Ward, 3; and Shelton Elizabeth, 1.

Bells Across America' Will Ring At 4 P.M. On September 17

The ringing of "Bells Across America" will take place Thursday, September 17, at 4 p.m.

It will be in celebration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution.

Churches or any facility with bells are asked to ring their bells 200 times in commemoration of the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution.

The ringing of the bells will be followed by 200 seconds of silence.

From every hill and dale across America, the ringing will sound in remembrance of what our founding fathers achieved in Philadelphia.

Supporting the celebration nationally is the "We The People" Administration of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR).

In Robeson County, the Col. Thomas Robeson Chapter of the DAR is sponsoring an effort to have bells everywhere ringing at 4 p.m. on that date. Members of the chapter are contacting churches and other facilities with bells.

PSU's Lowry Bell Tower will be ringing in commemoration of that celebration.

Eleanor Ebert, chairperson of the Col. Thomas Robeson Chapter's Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution Committee says: "Our objective is the involvement of all committees and officers in commemoration of the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution."

She said a fellowship group or prayer group of the chapter will be "praying regularly for our nation, its leaders in the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government, and for the continued blessings of liberty and freedom. The blessings of liberty are ours as a gift of grace, and we are reaching out in praise and thanksgiving."

The Col. Robeson Chapter's Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution Committee and Conservation Committee plan plant tulip poplar trees at a significant place in county also in remembrance of the U.S. Constitution's bicentennial.

"George Washington planted tulip poplars at Mt. Vernon in 1787 when the U.S. Constitutional Convention met, and tulip poplars were also planted in Philadelphia. Today those trees are the only living witnesses in Philadelphia to the events at the Constitutional Convention," said Mrs. Ebert.

The Col. Robeson Chapter is also sponsoring two essay contests pertaining to American history. The American History Month Committee of the chapter's essay contest will have the topic, "U.S. Constitution: Roads to Ratification." This is for students in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades with the deadline for entries being Jan. 15. The Junior American Citizens Committee contest theme is "A Great Event In American History 1776-1789" and is for students from kindergarten through the 12th grade and all levels of special education. Deadline for its entries is Jan. 20.

The Col. Robeson Chapter will have a luncheon meeting Sept. 15 with a special program in commemoration of the U.S. Constitution. Mike McIntyre, Lumberton attorney who is chairperson of the Robeson County Bicentennial Commission's Committee on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, will speak on the topic: "The Paradox of True Freedom."

County Career Center Teacher of the Year

Keith Allen Anderson, Robeson County Career Center's Teacher of the Year is a three year veteran of education. After obtaining a Bachelor of Science Degree in Industrial Arts / Technology Education at Appalachian State University, Mr. Anderson taught Industrial Arts Wood Technology at South Rowan Senior High School in Rowan County. Upon marriage to the former Sharon Hester of Bladenboro in 1985, Mr. Anderson relocated and began teaching Technical Drawing and Planning at the Robeson County Career Center.

As a believer in developing leadership and confidence in students, the American Industrial Arts Student Association's state and national competitions and activities, as integrated into the North Carolina Basic Education Program, serve as motivators in the Technical Drawing and Planning classrooms. With two North Carolina State First Place Champions in 1986-87, and a trip to the national competitions in Louisiana, and a two year consecutive "Best Exhibit" winner in the Robeson County Vocational Fair, it is obvious that the students in Mr. Anderson's classes extend themselves and their learning beyond the wall of the classroom.

Involvement in learning is the key concept or philosophy Keith Anderson subscribes in his classroom. Students are encouraged to learn by doing in all aspects of the curriculum. Whether drawing multi-view drawings, designing homes, designing and building bridges or race cars, or utilizing technology through computer assisted drafting, Mr. Anderson strives to produce, through his classes, more productive citizens for tomorrow.

As a Career Center teacher, Mr. Anderson serves as chairperson of the Public Relations Committee. He is also employed part-time as an instructor in the Extended Day Wood Technology Program and has been an instructor for the past two years in the summer Institute of Technology Program in Robeson County. As a professional, Mr. Anderson involves himself on the Regional Leadership Council as Chairman of Region IV Industrial Arts for the State Department of Public Instruction, attends vocational conferences, is active in the Industrial Arts professional organization.

Outside the profession, Keith Anderson resides in Bladenboro and participates in various aspects of church and community activities ranging from Sunday school teacher, choir member, Royal Ambassador Leader and softball player to dog trainer and fisherman and hunter.
