The True Way to Get Rich. Now that we have begun our household income, then you should make some seriou journey on the road to riches by following Step #1, we must now learn Step #2. Step #2, like Step #1 is a must if you truly desire to be RICH.

Step # 2 is BUDGET. We all know that this is a nasty word but a word that can make or break a family. So let's make it simple...list all your major monthly expenses:

- 1. Pay yourself (10 percent) Rent or mortgage payments
- Utilities (lights, phone, water & gas)
- Insurance
- 5. Automobile (payments and expenses)
- 6. Food
- Recreation (Entertainment)
- 8. Bills (Debts).

Now that we have listed these eight major expenses, take time and add them up. These items should equal 80 percent of your net income (if you have two or more incomes in your household, total them too). If these eight expenses equal more than 80 percent of your total spending adjustments. Remember not to confuse necessary expenses with your desires. Now you are asking yourself what happens to the other 20 percent of

When budgeting, you needn't trace every expenditure down to the last penny. This wastes too much time (and often causes family arguments). Instead, overlook the inevitable small items that you can't seem to track down. Most people have a few dollars worth of such unaccountable expenses every month. Attempting to pinpoint them entails useless bookkeeping. Don't waste this 20 percent either, remember last month when you had that unexpected repair bill and the month before when the ice maker went out. Use this 20 percent for the unseens that always come up each month.

If you can't budget you can't be rich. Clip this article and paste it on a plain sheet of paper. Label it Step #2 and place it in your loose leaf notebook entitled "The True Way to Get Rich" for future references.

BEING HUNGRIER

This attitude starts now, in the summer with preseason basketball camps, wrestling and gymnastics, tennis and golf camps. And the arts camps for music and swimming classes. This human drive to excellence is "what it is all about. This normal human instinct for action brings out the best in people." Good living, including the realizing the importance of a good clean healthy body free of drugs, free of nicotene, and wanting to win and getting the satisfaction that you get from making the team, from helping your school or even the neighborhood kids in doing well in whatever they like to do, whether they go swimming in my pool or wanting to learn to play golf or go swimming in the river. The point is they are hungry to learn. Look at me is a real freedom.

accomplishment for the little aid who first gets his head under water. It is great to see this happen and I have seen this happen in hundreds of times in all sports. So parents, teachers, doctors, administrators should never forget in their responsibilities that service to their fellow man is more important than money. Money is important but service is teaching the hungry to learn is paramont in our democratic society. Seeing to it that our kids get a fair deal in their chances to learn should be the dedicated goal of all people. There are so many that have nothing and they turn to escapism through drugs, crimes and you name it. We have a better part of our human nature and that is the care-for-others and getting hungrier to help them in getting rid of selfishness. Doing away with self centeredness and this is important in man's struggle for
