A new over-the-counter drug may provide relief for millions of Americans who suffer from sinus headaches. About 15 percent of all Americans have allergies and another six percent suffer from hay fever. A recent consumer study revealed that 92 percent of all allergy sufferers experience sinus headache during allergy attacks.

The non-aspirin medication was developed especially for those who suffer from sinus headache pain when they have a cold or allergy. Chlor-Trimeton Sinus Maximum Strength Pain Relief Caplets are made to provide relief for sinus headache pain and also help relieve the other symptoms of colds and allergies including sneezing; itchy, watery eyes; itchy throat; runny nose; and nasal congestion.

The new product helps provide relief from the symptoms of both colds and allergies. Those who suffer from hay fever may also want to stay indoors during the hours when the pollen count in the air is at its highest.
