Dial Announces Bid For Town Council

Allen Griffin Dial has a strong desire and interest in the growth, better development, safety and welfare of the Pembroke Community. As a result of his concern, he has filed for election to the Pembroke Town Council.

Sharing many issues of concerned citizens within the community, Dial feels that he possesses the necessary qualities to meet the needs and benefit the people and community. Being a life long resident of the area, he is deeply concerned about the economic and social growth of Pembroke.

Being a businessman himself, he has obtained experience in dealing with persons and businesses that can build upon contributing factors in community progress.

He feels the need and urge to make a difference in the lives of the people he wishes to serve and he wants to represent them to help bring about the actions and words to make the differences.

Dial has contributed a great deal to local residents, community children, homes for children, schools, and churches.

Dial is a former owner and manager of a convenient store and restaurant. Presently, he owns and operates heavy equipment. He has a wife, Yvonne Barnes Dial, and two daughters, Sheri Yvonne Dial and Lisa Yvonne Dial. He also attends Pembroke First United Methodist Church.

Local Businesses Do It With Flair

Flair enters the arena as the crowd goes wild.

Ric "The Nature Boy" Flair with long time friend Arn "The Enforcer" Anderson.

Flair locks the "figure four" on Ricky Steamboat.

America has had 39 presidents, two kings, (Richard Petty & Elvis Presley) but only one Jet Flying, limo riding, styling and profiling, 10 time world champion, sixty minute MAN, Rick (Nature Boy) Flair.

On July 30, Travel Galore of Pembroke and Bleecker Motors of Red Springs, in conjunction with C & C promotions brought the World Championship Wrestling (WCW) to the Fayetteville Memorial Area.

Lisa Bryant, Owner of Travel Galore arranged an exclusive interview with some of the WCW's top grapplers, 6 ft 9 inch, 320 lb Sid Vicious, The Enforcer, Double A, Arn Anderson, and none other than the Nature Boy.

Both Anderson and Vicious stated the toughest part of their profession is the grueling schedule. 20 nights a month, a minimum of 240 matches a year and enough miles between each arena to gather enough frequent flyer miles to buy a Mercedes, the norm. Vicious, a new father, has seen his 6 week old son only once.

Anderson has teamed up with WCW newcomer Paul Roma to reform the tagteam of the 80's, The Four Horsemen. They have their eye set on the tagteam belt currently held by the Hollywood Blondes, Brian Pillman and Steve Austin. With Flair as the leader of this group and a partner soon to be named, there is no doubt this group will dominate the sport for years to come.

Vicious has joined with Big Van Vader and call themselves the Masters of the Powerbomb. A wrestling move that has the ability to stop all opponents in their tracks. Tonight he faces the ever popular "Sting".

As for Flair, before his scheduled match with Ricky "The Dragon" Steamboat, He is cool, talkative, an incredibly focused. "A lot of people think they know me, they only know what they see in the ring. The greatest thing about this sport is the fans."

Flair says, "The fans make it easy for me to continue." Continue for how long? "Until I lose a step and cannot be as competitive as I am today". With a new talk show, "A Flair for the Gold", the heavyweight belt and at an incredibly fit 240lbs, its hard to imagine Flair not being competitive enough to be in the limelight.

Sting calls out to the crowd. (Rick Barton photos)

Ric Flair was raised in a well-to-do suburb of Minneapolis and was the only child of Dick and Kay Flihr (pronounced Flair). His father, a gynecologist was also the local drama instructor. Drama comes naturally to the Nature Boy. It was with his parents blessings he entered the world of wrestling almost 20 years ago. Now he continues to wrestle and dominate with the blessings of his second wife, Beth, a Floridian who was introduced to Ric by one of the Embers. (Ric's second passion is shagging to beach music) and his two children, Ashley, 6 and Reid, 4.

While Flair is talking, one of his handlers tells him its time to get ready. He nods and as I leave to return to my seat in the arena he gives me his address in Charlotte. "Send me a copy of your paper, I've heard some good things about the Lumbee Indians from Chris" (Chavis, Lumbee Indian now wrestling as "Tatanka" in another wrestling Federation). "Now There's a Wrestler with a great future."

Flair enters the arena wearing a purple sequined robe with matching trunks and shoes. "If you can't do it with Flair, don't do it at all". He steps out of his robe and leisurely hands it to an attendant. Never in a hurry. Never rushed. He looks across the ring at Steamboat, then looks out in the audience and lets out a mighty "Woowoooo". He goes to work against Steamboat for a scheduled one hour match.

Millions of fans know this Ric Flair, 10 time world heavyweight wrestling Champion, 8 time WCW (now owned by Ted Turner) champ. He is known as "the man". A true wrestler in a time when wrestling identities are ever changing to draw a greater audience and a greater share of the market.

Whether you like it or not, Learn to love it cause it's the best thing going today. Woo. On this night, Flair wins again.
