The soldier is a 1991 graduate of West Robeson High School, Maxton.

Cpt. Stacy Locklear,
On July 27, 1993, Lieutenant Stacy Locklear Jr., was promoted to Captain in the United States Air Force. Captain Stacy Locklear Jr. is presently serving in The United Air Force at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. At Wright Patterson Air Force Base Captain Locklear serves as a Chemical Research Officer in the fuels branch of the Aero-propulsion and power directorate, which is a part of Wright Laboratories. Wright Laboratories is one of four super research laboratories operated by the United States Air Force.

Captain Locklear attended Pembroke Elementary and graduated from West Robeson Senior High School (it is now Funnell Swett High School) in 1985. He graduated from Pembroke State University in 1989 where he received a B.S. Degree in Chemistry and an ROTC Commission as a Second Lieutenant in the United States Air Force. He is presently completing requirements for a masters degree in chemistry at Wright State University.

He entered the Air Force in October of 1989 and was first assigned to Mather Air Force Base in Sacramento, California before his present assignment at Wright Patterson Air Force Base.

Captain Locklear is the son of Stacy Sr. and Betty C. Locklear of Pembroke.

Cameron Reports

I've heard some great lines over the years. Here are just a few:

When former tennis pro Illie Nastase lost his credit card a few years ago, he was asked why he didn't immediately report it. His reply—"Whoever stole it is spending less than my wife."

During the 1975 Western Open, Lee Trevino, Jerry Heard and Bobby Nichols were all dazed by a nearby lightning strike. Afterwards Lee quipped, "Now when I hear thunder, I'm going to let God play through."

As Mark Twain once penned, "it's good sportsmanship to not pick up lost golf balls while they are still rolling."

While a player at Notre Dame, "Golden Boy" Paul Hornung was caught snuffing out a cigarette by his coach Frank Leahy.

"Do you see what I see near your shoe, Paul?" Leahy barked.

Hornung replied sheepishly, "Yeach, coach, I see. But you take it. You saw it first."

Dallas Cowboys runningback Duane Thomas once asked if he possessed a high IQ. "Sure, I've got one," replied Thomas. "It's a perfect 20-20."

Once on a train ride, St. Louis pitcher Daffy Dean downed a bottle of soda pop.

As the train pulled into a long tunnel, sportswriter Grantland Rice overheard this conversation between Dean brothers Daffy and Dizzy:

Daffy: "Diz, you tried any of this stuff?"

Dizzy: "Just fixin' to. Why?"

Daffy: "Don't! I did and I've gone plumb blind."

Sam Huff commented on his Redskins broadcast partners Sonny Jurgenson and Frank Herzog. "A few people know this, but Sonny and Frank are dull people. We'd have a whole lot better radio if they let me talk more."

Kilts and Kalonists
Apologizing for digressing from Gen Marion, we take a broader looker at things that were going on in and nearer Drowning Creek. Using the state records as our source, we examine additional wartime correspondence. The N.C., S.C. boundary was the pivoted point for much of the guerilla action between the loyalist militia's and the colonial militia's. The letters of the principal's engaged in the fighting is used quite often to shed great light on the general atmosphere in most of the communities. The following alludes to the much swinging back and forth.

MAJ. GEN. R. CADWELL TO GEN. GATES CAMP NEAR CROSS CREEK, 20 JUNE, 1780
Sir:
Your favour of the 16th I had the honour to receive this morning. The militia are coming in pretty fast, but I fear the number directed to be raised will not be completed by at least one third. Colonel Armond's Corps arrived at Cross Creek a few days past. I am unhappy in being obliged to acquaint you that provisions and forage cannot be supplied to your army at this place; indeed, I mean the militia here can be supplied but a few days longer. I have made some inquiries respecting the road from Hillsborough to P.D. and find that the road by Woods; on Haw River; coxe's on Deep River; McArthur's on Drowning Creek; to Haley's on P.D., is the most direct, and where there is the greatest probabilities of subsisting the army. From Woods' to Connor Dowd's on Deep River, thence by Seals Road into the Road five miles from Coles' Bride, on Drowning

Creek, which is twenty five miles Eastward of Haley's on P.D. (Leading from Cross Creek to Haley's) is about ten miles further than the road last mentioned, and provisions cannot be obtained after being fifty miles on that road from Hillsborough; but where Seal's Road comes into the Cross Creek Road, or at Cole's (25 miles from P.D.) a junction may be formed by our troops and the militia under my command, though neither provisions or forage to be had at either of these places.

From every account I have been able to obtain, the enemy have a post at the Cheraw Hill, thirty miles from Coles' Bridge, on the west side of P.D., about fifteen miles below Haley's where they have about 500 regulars of the 71 Regiment, commanded by Major McArthur; that from three to six hundred soldiers are enlisted under a Col. Harrison; that a post is also established at a place called the Long Bluff, about fifteen miles below the Cheraw, where they have a command of about forty men, and to that place they have collected all the boats between Haley's and that place on P.D., and a considerable quantity of corn, some salt and arms; that small detachments are made from these posts, who have crossed the river and plundered the inhabitants as far up the river as near to Haley's. I have several persons out, from whom I hourly expect information, and I intend sending a person tomorrow morning to your express, not only with any information I may receive, but to bring your answer to this letter.

If one or the other of the routes I have mentioned, or by any other, and shall think proper to communicate the same to me, my movements will be governed thereby.

If you will give me leave to form you at Coles' bridge, where I presume you may arrive in ten or twelve days, I will march from hence so as to arrive there a day or two before you; or if you go by the other rote to Haley's on your signifying the time you expect to be there I will endeavor to reach that before you, previous to which it is my intention at present to send on a light party, if I find it practicable to secure provisions on P.D.; but this I think it will be imprudent for me to do until I am favored with your determination as to the route you will take, as I must support the party I send on, and shall expect to be myself supported by you. It is possible that the accounts of the roads I give you may be erroneous, as I derive my information from persons in this part of the country who may not be altogether so well acquainted with them as some you may meet with and from whom you may be better enabled to judge.

I have the honor to be, with great respect and esteem, sir your most obedient and very humble servant.
R. Caswell M.G. Militia.

of particular interest, Gen. Caswell told of the Cheraw living in their ancestral lands during this time. Also, of note; if the white's spoke of an Indian group by name, that Indian group had to be very impressive to be taken note of in such a way. At what time would the Cheraw have dismantled their Tribal structure and have moved east?

Starting school protected
Have you ever been called an "over-protective parent"? Well, for those of us whose children will be starting school for the first time this fall, it's time to loosen our hold on our little ones and let them begin to develop the independence they need.

But in one area we should continue to insist that our children be as protected as possible. Protected against disease, that is. And, by the way, September 22-29 is National Immunization Week.

For information on childhood immunization, call: 1-800-525-6789. When it comes to fighting disease, our children need all the protection they can get!
