Students Honored For Their Research Efforts

Charleston, SC—Citadel graduate and undergraduate students were recently honored for their research efforts at the annual meeting of the South Carolina Psychological Association in Myrtle Beach.

Sherri Stokes of Mt. Pleasant took the top honors in the Graduate Student Research Competition, with her paper entitled "A Comparison of Young Children's Behaviors Following Three Types of Trauma." Kathy North-Herald of Charleston and Kara Van Der Heyden of Mt. Pleasant both received honorable mention for their research papers.

Other Citadel graduate students who presented original research projects included Victoria Allen of Ladson, Joe Blackmon of Orrum, Vaudrian Forsythe of Mt. Pleasant, Deborah Foster of Goose Creek, David Halfacre of Charleston, Pamela Hammonds of Pembroke, and Daniel Neidreffer of Summerville.

Nine Citadel cadets also presented their research findings at the meeting.

The Citadel had the most submissions out of the schools that participated in the undergraduate research competition from around the state. Senior psychology major Gus McDowell of Goldsboro received honorable mention for his paper, a version of which was also presented at the Southeastern Psychological Association in New Orleans in March.

Other undergraduate students who presented research studies at the meeting included Eric Baumgartner of Newberry, Charles (Trey) Leath of Chapin, Christian McDuffie of Sumter, Oberdan Congello of North Adams, Otha (Trey) Perry of Stanley, Mark Wozar of Glen Burnie, and Scott Henderson and Michael Palazzo both of Columbia.

Cadet Tyrone Benson of Columbia and Dean Howell of Lexington assisted Dr. Tim Daugherty in a professional presentation on teaching research to non-majors and Encouraging Advocacy.

Adult Volunteer Leaders Recognized and Honored

Robeson County's adult volunteer leaders got a pat on the back for a job well done. The Central District of the Cape Fear Council Boy Scouts of America held its annual awards banquet on April 28th. This year's ceremony was hosted by Fairmont's Fire and Rescue Center.

Unlike all other scouting events and activities which focus on the youth, this is the one special time of the year where the adult leaders are the center of attention. It is the opportunity for formal acknowledgement to be made to the hundreds of volunteer leaders county wide who provide our youth with a quality program.

The Central District Chapter of the Order of the Arrow provided an opening ceremony, and District Chaplain Reverend Thomas House delivered the invocation. Central District Chairman Bill Mauney Director of Student Services at Robeson Community College served as master of ceremonies for the awards presentations covering a variety of program areas.

For events management, 1993 Cub Scout Day Camp Directors Barry and Sandra Currier of Lumberton were acknowledged. Les Abbott of Lumberton received recognition for his work with the Fall Cub Scout Fun Day at Pembroke State University. Mr. Abbott and Harvey Colley both were recognized for their successful Boy Scout's Fall Camporee. For his work as 1994 Scout Show Chairman, Larry Scantlin of Lumberton was also recognized.

Central District's Training Committee Chair, Nancy Caughill of Fairmont was called upon to recognize the adults leaders who had successfully completed their training programs. Ms. Caughill made special acknowledgment of three individuals who had completed the advanced Boy Scout leader training program known as "Woodbadge." These individuals included Francis Pinchbeck of Pembroke, and Pat Jones and David Newbrough of Lumberton.

Each Fall across the United States, scouting holds its "Fall Roundup" membership drive. Central District Executive Reed Wallace was called on to present awards to the members of Robeson County's outstanding "Roundup Team": Barry Currier, Joe Hernandez, James Hooper, and Kathy Stanton all of Lumberton; Francis Pinchbeck, of Pembroke, Steve and Donnis Smith, and Wayne Kraft of Parkton; Linda Sturdivant of St. Pauls; Cathy Shooter of Rowland, and Gordon and Nancy Caughill of Fairmont.

Recognizing the unit leaders' outstanding work was District Commissioner Jim Blake who presented "Quality Unit Award" ribbons to those exceptional cub scout packs and boy scout troops, and explorer posts who met national quality program standards.

For past administrative service and leadership to Robeson County's scouting program during their terms of office (1991-93), former District Chairman Earl Strickland and District Commissioner Dr. George Mazingo III were acknowledged. Also recognized for their outstanding leadership with the "Investment in Character" finance campaign were 1993 County Campaign Chairman LeRoy Adams of Ameco, Inc., and 1994 County Campaign Chairman Glen Heintz of United Carolina Bank.

District Chairman Bill Mauney presented the "Chairman's Circle" special recognition award to Jo Ann Johnson of Pack 327 in Pembroke and Pack 323 in Maxton, to James Hooper of Troop 302 at Sandy Grove Baptist Church in Lumberton, and Wanda Stephens of Pack 300 at Tanglewood.

The district's highest award, for outstanding service to the entire county the Cape Fear Award went to three individuals: Larry Scantlin of Lumberton, Linda Pitts, of Pembroke State University, and to the memory of Kenneth Locklear, former scoutmaster of Troop 326 at Mt. Airy Baptist Church, past Camporee Chief, and leader of the Cape Fear Council contingent at the 1993 National Scout Jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill in Virginia.

Charlie Gaddy Speaks to PSU Graduates

Charlie Gaddy, who retires July 1 as news anchor and senior editor of Raleigh's WRAL-TV, praised Pembroke State University's graduating class of 531 students Saturday for being "the largest in school history" and said "graduates can take a lesson from you."

Gaddy said he draws inspiration from the fact "that there has never been a racial incident on this campus," whose 3,000-plus students are made up of "62 percent white, 24 percent American Indians and 12 percent African Americans."

He asked, "What is it of most value that you will carry from this place? I believe it to be the humanness you have found here, the respect for each other that is nurtured on this campus. While the history of this University continues to be written, its commitment to and practice of civility have already been well documented."

In speaking of how America can take a lesson from PSU, Gaddy pointed out, "There is some recent evidence that students on some of the nation's campuses are re-segregating—that the students divide themselves racially in the dining halls. Let us not drift into suspicion and distrust. You here a Pembroke State have learned to let diversity as Americans enrich us—not divide us."

Gaddy said the people of this state and the UNC system "are justifiably proud of your record of academic excellence, the diversity of your curriculum, and your outstanding Master's program."

Gaddy, a native of Biscoe, was presented an honorary doctor of human letters degree by PSU and was cited as "North Carolina's foremost broadcast journalist." He described being the graduation speaker at PSU and receiving the honorary doctorate as "one of the greatest moments of life."

Also presented an honorary doctor of science was Dr. Earl C. Lowry, a native of Pembroke who served in Europe during the World War II and attained the rank of colonel as a U.S. Army surgeon. Now a resident of Des Moines, Iowa, Lowry provided medical attention to some of the great names of World War II, including President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Gen. Dwight D.

Eisenhower, and Gen. George Patton.

In his remarks as speaker for the occasion, Gaddy spoke of how the news media has gone to new heights to add to fear and paranoia by national OK Corral—a shootout on every corner. What will it take to change television?" he asked. "The off button," he said with resolve.

He emphasized that whatever people are watching, whether it be a newscast or a soap opera, is recorded by the industry as a yes vote. "Hollywood producers and news consultants are not going to change anything as long as you are watching. They may give it lip service, but believe me, they won't change anything until they are financially injured by the off button."

Gaddy also encouraged the graduates to vote, noting that only 14 percent of the voters turned out in the recent primary in Wake County. He compared this with the South Africans who walked for hours and stood in lines sometimes a mile long "in order to exercise the privilege of marking a ballot."

Gaddy said that he recommends to the graduates "community service," adding, "You can never do anything for someone else that does not come back to you tenfold."

The commencement also saw the presentation of three Adolph L. Dial Endowed PSU Faculty Awards, each worth $1,000, to Dr. Kathryn Rileigh, professor in the Psychology Department, for teaching; to Paul Van Zandt, chair of the Art Department, for scholarship/creative work; and to Dr. Ray Pennington, athletic director and professor in the Department of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, for community service.

Greetings to the graduates were voiced by Jack P. Jordan, a member of the UNC Board of Governors; Dr. Roy Carroll, vice president for planning of the UNC General Administration; and Joe Huffman of Raeford, president of the PSU Student Government Association.

The record 531 graduates included 457 receiving undergraduate degrees and 74 receiving graduate degrees.

Doris Brooks (shown holding flowers) is the fifth member of her family to graduate from Pembroke State University, which she did Saturday. Others are (left to right) her mother, Doris, who graduated in '59; her sister, Danielle, who graduated in '90; and her father, Dr. Dalton Brooks, who graduated in '61. Her brother, Dalton Peter Brooks, who graduated in '84, could not be present. He is in dental school in Massachusetts.

Locklear to Publish New Book

The subject of a forthcoming book is honored on Mother's Day by the placing of a wreath of her husband, Rev. Edmond Locklear, Jr., and their son and daughter and their families. The book to be titled "My Wife is Dying of Cancer" will tell how Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Locklear and Rev. Locklear grew up as Lumbee Indians in Robeson County, North Carolina and how they lived their 37 years, 10 months, and 27 days as man and wife. The writing of the book is complete and it is now going through several refinement drafts. Rev. Locklear says he had to tell the story intimately in order to tell the personal miracle which happened to him after his wife's death.

The book's publication date is November 21, 1994, the second anniversary of Mrs. Locklear's passing. Rev. Locklear latest book titled "98% Of the People You Know & Love are in Dangerous Sexual Situations" was published in April and is now going out to bookstores. Rev. Locklear is on the left side of the picture. A memorial stone for his wife's grave is not yet complete.
