Dalton Brooks Overcomes 6 Challengers in Race For Lumbee Tribal Chairman

In the races for the 21-member tribal council 17 candidates were declared winners. Three seats are automatically in a run-off and the District 1 seat in Scotland County will be decided by the tribal council. There were no candidates for that position. According to the Lumbee Constitution, the tribal council will appoint someone to represent that seat.

When asked about the role of Lumbee Regional Development Association, the private, non-profit corporation with no members, in tribal government, Dr. Brooks stated:

"The very essence of the Lumbee Constitution is a new way of doing business. I believe that all Indian business should come under the tribal council. The tribal council should compete with LRDA for all those programs which are funded with set aside funds, such as JTPA, the federal Head Start Program, and all other programs that are funded specifically for Indians.

"When I say LRDA, I mean the programs and services that have been administered by that agency. Those belong to the tribe. When I say LRDA, I am not saying that the board of directors of that agency should come into our tribal government.

"The very intent of the tribal constitution is to reorganize and form our own tribal government. You cannot have two governing bodies. That would be a conflict of interest. We have to have a new way of doing business. It is our responsibility to reorganize under tribal government so that our people can believe again.

"The LRDA programs should come under the tribal council and that body would supervise those programs."

Dr. Dalton Brooks overcame challenges by six other candidates and received 39.9 percent of the vote.

Chairman, Dr. Brooks received 2,330 votes, that was 1,147 more votes than the second place finisher, Rev. James A. Hunt who received 1,183 votes.

Dr. Brooks is a professor at Pembroke State University. He also pastors Dundarrach Baptist Church, Rev. Hunt is pastor at Deep Branch Baptist Church.

According to the procedure for the election set forth by the Constitutional Assembly, authors of the Lumbee Constitution, a run-off is automatic. If a candidate does not receive 40 percent of the vote. As of press time, Rev. Hunt had not stated whether he would concede the election.

Finishing third in the race was Rev. Jimmy Strickland who received 895 votes. Fourth place was Ray Littleturtle who received 617 votes. He was followed by James B. Locklear with 302 votes, Rev. Welton Lowry with 289 votes and Rev. Hubbard Lowry with 246 votes.

Art Exhibit Comes to PSU

Dr. Kathryn Raleigh and Sandy Stratil will exhibit their art work in the Pembroke State University Art Gallery in Locklear Hall. The exhibition will be held Friday, Sept. 2 through Friday, Sept. 23.

An opening reception for the artists will be held on Wed. Sept. 7 from 10:00 a.m. until 11:30 a.m. in the Art Gallery located in Locklear Hall. Refreshments will be served. Faculty, students and community members are invited to attend.

Both artists are professors at Pembroke State University. Raleigh is a professor in the Psychology Department. Her academic interests have included the psychology of aesthetics and children's art. Since 1980, she has studied painting seriously and has been producing and exhibiting watercolors in local and state-level juried shows.

Her paintings tend to be understated by design and involve the viewer to the greatest extent possible. She is intrigued by the use of transparent watercolors to suggest in the last 5 years has incorporated mixed media and collage into her work. She studied with several nationally known watercolorists including Alex Powers, Skip Lawrence, and Katherine Chang Liu at the Springmaid Watercolor Workshop in Myrtle Beach. She has been in many local and regional exhibits. She recently won an honorable mention at the North Carolina Watercolor Society Show.

The paintings in the exhibition will represent a new direction for Stratil's work. While some of the images may look familiar to those who know her paintings, the way she creates the paintings is quite different than in the past. She generally starts with a concept which may be a word, an idea, or a feeling. Then she decides on the colors and an compositional format.

At this point, Stratil may pour ink or watercolor into large general shapes, or use painted paper to break up the spaces of the paper. Then comes a period of just looking at the composition. She may then use various techniques of color, line and value, using whichever media seem to suit the images.

similarity between projective techniques in psychology and paintings in the way they both evoke unique and individualistic responses. Stratil is the Director of the College Opportunity Program. She has painted in watercolor for the last 20 years, and Stratil believes that working in series and focusing on elements other than subject matter in the beginning stages has given her work a new depth.

Dr. Sandra Locklear And Staff Attend Lectures

Local optometrist, Dr. Sandra Locklear and staff Pembroke recently attended Carolina Eye Associates Ninth Annual Ocular Disorders Symposium at the Pinehurst Hotel in Pinehurst, North Carolina on Saturday and Sunday, August 27th and 28th. For the ninth consecutive year, a record number of eye doctors and their assistants attended the lectures and slide shows which reviewed a wide variety of eye disorders and complications, and heard about the latest techniques in caring for these eye problems.

Carolina Eye Associates is one of the largest eye centers in the United States with 15 centers located across the Carolinas.

The Ophthalmology Update was presented by 16 surgical specialists of Carolina Eye Associates. Presenters

Dr. Adolph Dial Back at Home After Lengthy Hospitalization

Dr. Adolph Dial has returned to his Pembroke home after a lengthy stay in two hospitals. He is reported to be doing very well.

Dr. Dial, local historian, professor emeritus at PSU, former member of the NC House of Representatives, suffered a major heart attack while vacationing in the Mid-West. He underwent open heart, bypass surgery at Holy Cross Hospital in Salt Lake City, Utah. He spent four weeks in the hospital there. He was transported via Medic Flight to Duke University Medical Center three weeks ago. He was placed in intensive care unit.

Greetings may be sent to his home address at Route 2 Box 295, Pembroke, NC 28372.
