Hors d'oeuvres news

Are you steering clear of shrimp hors d'oeuvres at those Holiday parties for your health's sake? If so, it's time to make a delicious course correction.

According to the director of the famous Framingham Heart Study, "In terms of effect on blood-cholesterol levels, shrimp actually is on a par with skinless breast of chicken." That's because shrimp is incredibly low in saturated fat, the real culprit in raising blood cholesterol. And another bonus is that a 3 oz. serving of shrimp has 85 calories, while the same amount of skinless chicken has 150.
