Robin G. Cummings, M.D. receives certification by Board of Thoracic Surgery

each applicant must undergo an oral examination, during which they are interviewed by prominent surgeons. The interview process is designed to evaluate the candidate's ability to manage ordinary and complex problems which may be encountered during surgery.

Board certification is awarded only after the applicant has successfully completed both examinations. All board-certified physicians are required to undergo recertification every 10 years.

Dr. Cummings completed his undergraduate education at UNC-Chapel Hill before receiving his medical degree from Duke University School of Medicine. He remained at Duke to serve his residency in General Surgery and fellowship in Cardiac and Thoracic Surgery. Dr. Cummings had previously received board certification by the American Board of Surgery in General Surgery.

During his training, Dr. Cummings spent two years conducting research supported by a National Research Service Award grant. In 1992, after completion of his residency and fellowship, Dr. Cummings joined the staff at Moore Regional Hospital's Heart Center. He is currently a member of the Board of Directors at the Pinchurst Surgical Center.

The Moore Regional Hospital Heart Center opened in 1990 and has grown to include two cardiac and thoracic surgeons, four invasive cardiologists and two non-invasive cardiologists. More than 1,200 heart operations and 8,800 catheterizations and angioplasties have been performed. The program has consistently been recognized for its low mortality rates and low costs.

A native of Pembroke, Dr. Cummings is married to the former Rebecca Godwin and they have four children: Amy, Mark, David, and Adam.

Medicare, Medicaid, Blue Cross Blue Shield, Provident, Champlus, and HealthSource accepted.

The Moore Regional FCC is approved by the Joint Commission On Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

Terry Lee Stewart to seek Register of Deeds position feel like this is what the citizens of Robeson County want and deserve. I want to be a leader who deals fairly with the concerns of all the people of all the races in Robeson County."

"I believe, as Martin Luther King said, in judging people by the content of their character, not by the color of their skin," the candidate said. "The job of Register of Deeds requires assistants who are the best and brightest this country has to offer."

Stewart, a strong supporter of outgoing Register of Deeds, Joe B. Freeman, says he wants to continue the work Freeman began.

"I appreciate the citizens of Robeson County and I appreciate the fine work Joe has done while he has been in office," Stewart said. "If I am elected, I plan to stay on the course that Joe has set—making few, if any, changes."

Stewart graduated from Farigrove High School in 1981, and attended Robeson Community College. His family attends New Point Baptist Church.
