Sheriff Glenn Maynor appointed to task force on Racial and Religious Violence

Governor Jim Hunt recently announced the 21 members of a new task force designed to find ways to protect churches around the state from racially-motivated fires and other acts of racial and religious violence.

The task force includes state Attorney General Mike Easley, who will serve as chairman, Sec. of Crime Control and Public Safety Richard Moore, SBI Director Jim Coman, state Sen. Jeanne Lucas of Durham, State Rep. William Wainwright of Havelock, Skip Alston of Greensboro, acting state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and several law enforcement officials, citizens and ministers from across the state.

"This task force includes some of our state's most highly qualified law enforcement experts, concerned citizens, legislators and religious leaders who are working together to erase racial and religious hatred," Hunt said. "I am counting on them to help us do all we can to make sure every church in North Carolina is protected from these acts of violence."

Other task force members include: Rev. Jerry Drayton chairman of the NC Human Relations Commission; Rev. Harold Diggs chairman of the Martin Luther King Jr. Commission; Wake County District Attorney Colon Willoughby; U.S. Attorney for the Western District Mark Calloway; Police chief Donnie Parks of Hendersonville; Sheriff Glenn Maynor of Robeson County; FBI special agent John Morley and ATF special agent Mark Logan; Rev. William Barber of United Church of Christ in Goldsboro; Rev. John D. Fuller of Fayetteville of the General Baptist State Convention; Rev. Charles von Rosenberg of St. James Episcopal Church, Wilmington; Rev. Joe Mann of Raleigh, President of the North Carolina Council of Churches; Mayor Fred Yates of Winfall; Ken Spaulding, chairman of the Durham Committee on the Affairs of Black People; and Valeria Lee of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation.

The task force held their first meeting today at 10:30 in the Press Conference room of the Administration Building.

On the same evening in the same location, Kelli Y. Wallace, Junior Miss Lumbee, will relinquish her crown to the new Junior Miss Lumbee. The contestants for that pageant are also shown below.

Native American Medicine Show to kickoff Lumbee Homecoming

Lumbee Regional Development Association will sponsor the 28th Lumbee Homecoming beginning June 29-July 6. The agency has sponsored Lumbee Homecoming since its inception along with the Town of Pembroke. Opening event for the Homecoming activities will be the presentation of Scott Blanks and the First Annual Indian Medicine Show. This event is sponsored by the N.C. Indian Cultural Center and will be presented at the Performing Arts Center on the campus of Pembroke. The show begins at 8 p.m. Admission is $10 general admission and $6 for senior citizens and children 12 and over.

Construction to begin on Home Offices of Lumbee Bank

Lumbee Guaranty Bank announces construction of their new Home Office located at 403 East Third Street, Pembroke, NC (across from the Post Office). The ground breaking ceremony will be held July 3, 1996 at 10 a.m.

This occasion marks another milestone for Lumbee Guaranty Bank. This year marks the 25th Anniversary of Lumbee Guaranty Bank, according to Larry D. Chavis, President/CEO.

Pembroke State University becomes UNC-Pembroke

After more than four weeks of delay in the Legislature, the name of Pembroke State University was officially changed to the University of North Carolina at Pembroke (UNC-P) Thursday. The Bill was introduced in the House by Rep. Frances M. Cummings of District 87 and a companion Bill was introduced in the Senate by retiring Senator David Parnell.

After several weeks of delay, the Senate decided to pass Rep. Cummings' bill and the University became UNC-P.

Rep. Ron Sutton who represents District 85 where the University is located finally made an appeal to both Chambers to pass the Bill. The name change announcement was scheduled as part of the Lumbee Homecoming activities. It was touch-and-go for several days as the House and the Senate seemed to be stalled as debate went back and forth about protocol, tradition, and who was going to get the credit. But the House Bill passed in time for the scheduled Lumbee Homecoming activities.
