Lowry Brothers Receive Eagle Scout Awards

An Eagle Scout Ceremony was held October 5, 1997 at Prospect United Methodist Church in which William Brandon Lowry and Justin Heath Lowry both received their Eagle Scout Award. This was the first Eagle Scout Ceremony to be held at Prospect United Methodist Church and the first time brothers have received this award in the Prospect Community.

In order to meet the requirements for Eagle Scout each boy had to earn a minimum of 21 merit badges, attain Order of the Arrow, complete a Community Service Project, and participate in various activities. They are members of Prospect Troop 309. The Scoutmaster is Mr. Delton Waltman and Assistant Scoutmasters are Mr. Harry McMillan, Mr. Randall Blue, Mr. Glen Locklear, and Mr. Dwight Locklear. Mr. David Brooks, an Eagle Scout, was guest speaker. The Eagle Scout Oath was administered by Mr. Bill French and the Eagle Scout Charge was given by Mr. William Britt. A reception was held in the fellowship hall immediately following the ceremony.

Brandon has been in scouting for eleven years. He attended Purnell Swett High School and is currently attending UNC-Chapel Hill. He is a member of Prospect United Methodist Church.

Justin has been in scouting for nine years. He attends Purnell Swett High School and is also a member of Prospect United Methodist Church.

They are the sons of Rebecca and William Lowry.

A special thanks is given to all of those who assisted in the achievement of this honor.

Jason Deese Receives Eagle Scout Award

On October 5, 1997 Eagle Scout Candidate Jason Corey Deese, 18, received the prestigious honor of becoming an Eagle Scout in the first ceremony held at Prospect United Methodist Church. To attain this honor, Jason earned 24 merit badges, the Order of the Arrow, held offices and completed a community service project.

Jason, a freshman at UNCP, is the son of Robert and Carolyn Deese of the Prospect Community. He is a member of Prospect United Methodist Church. He has been a member of Prospect Boy Scout Troop 309 since 1990. The Scoutmaster of the troop is Mr. Delton Waltman and the Assistant Scoutmasters are Mr. Harry L.

McMillan, Mr. Randall Blue, Mr. Glen Locklear and Mr. Dwight Locklear.

Guest speaker for the event was Dr. David Brooks, an Eagle Scout. The Eagle Scout Oath was administered by Mr. Bill French and the Eagle charge was given by Mr. William S. Britt. Presentation of the Eagle Pin and badge were given by Mr. Delton Waltman.

A slide presentation was shown by Mr. Warren Love.

More than two hundred guests congratulated Jason at a reception in the fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Special thanks is given to Mr. Francis Pinchbeck for all his efforts in coordinating the ceremony.

An authentic powwow, complete with traditional music and regalia, will be featured during the Native American Celebration on Saturday, November 15, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the N.C. State Museum of Natural Sciences and the N.C. Museum of History.

Native American Celebration fills museums with Dance, Music, and Crafts

A traditional powwow will be featured during the Native American Celebration on Saturday, Nov. 15 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the N.C. State Museum of Natural Sciences and the N.C. Museum of History. The event highlights the culture of Native Americans, including crafts, foods and music. The Native American Celebration is co-sponsored by the N.C. Commission of Indian Affairs and the Triangle Native American Society.

An authentic powwow will be the centerpiece of the event, beginning at 11:30 a.m. and lasting throughout the day. The powwow will begin with the traditional grand entry. Participants will be clothed in Native American regalia. Other performances include the drum troupe Southern Sun and dancers from North Carolina's seven recognized tribes. The powwow will take place at the Museum of History.

Storyteller Jacque Garneau, known as Eagle Woman, will encourage the audience to join in as she weaves incredible stories of the past. Craft a Native American tree ornament with feather, pine cones, and other natural materials. Make power bracelets with leather and beads. Learn about the aspects of Native American culture with beadwork and blowgun demonstrations will take place at the Museum of Natural Sciences.

Many beautiful and diverse crafts will be for sale, including spirit catchers, pottery, basketry, drums, beadwork, and blankets. Traditional foods will be sold on the Bicenennial Plaza. Try venison, bison, corn syrup, Indian fry bread, fish, and sassafras and peppermint tea.

All activities are free. No registration required. Free weekend parking available in the Museum of History underground garage at the corner of Jones and Wilmington streets. Call the Museum of Natural Sciences at 919-733-7450 or the Museum of History at 919-715-0200 for more information.

The North Carolina State Museum of Natural Sciences, in downtown Raleigh, documents and interprets the natural history of the state of North Carolina through exhibits, research, collections publications, and educational programming. The new Museum is scheduled to open in September of 1999 with ten major exhibits. It is an agency of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources, Wayne McDevitt, Secretary.

The N.C. Museum of History's tours are Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday 12-5 p.m. Admission is free. Parking is available under the museum. The museum is an agency of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources.

McIntyre Announces $1.2 Million to Fight Drugs

Washington, D.C. - Congressman Mike McIntyre announced today that more than $1.2 million dollars has been awarded to Southeastern North Carolina in the war against drugs by the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Congressman McIntyre stated, "These funds are a good example of the federal government and the local housing authorities will focus on law enforcement, victim assistance, and drug prevention in our public housing communities."

The housing authorities and the award amounts are: Lumberton Housing Authority, $219,300; North Carolina Indian Housing Authority, $76,200; Housing Authority of Wilmington, $437,060; Robeson County Department of Housing, $86,400; Fayetteville Metropolitan Housing Authority, $313,500; and Pembroke Housing Authority, $72,900. The funds will set up security and protective services to aid local law enforcement in stopping the sale and use of illegal drugs in public housing developments. Coordinators will monitor the progress of the program and provide assistance to residents who are victims of crime. Programs will focus on reaching our young people before they adopt high-risk behavior.

Congressman McIntyre said, "Illegal drug use is a national problem, but we must confront it at the local level. I commend local housing authorities for taking the initiatives to address the problem. I will continue to support them in this and future efforts to make our streets a safer place."

Christine Bartlack, is shown with her grandmother, the late Eula Jane Bullard, and her new husband, Dougie McDonald, cruising along Montreal. Christine is the daughter of Pandora Bullard Bartlack and the granddaughter of the late Hartford Bullard.

Pembroke BPW Celebrates BPW Week Mrs. Yvonne Barnes Dial named Woman of the Year leadership, attract new people, have a strong link with other groups, nurture relationships, and be committed and active within the organization.

Wednesday, the organization provided ice-cream and cake to Senior Citizens at Maynor Manor.

Each year, the organization presents the "Woman of the Year" award to a person to whom the club considers has displayed a strong desire to improve the lives of women and children, gives unselfishly, or goes beyond limits to perform her duties. This year recipient was Yvonne Barnes Dial.

The Pembroke BPW invites those who are interested to join their efforts to improve and make a difference in the lives of people. Many attempts and great concern for individuals by the groups has helped to provide a college education for women, provide necessities, for women and children, support other organizations, and give and support others in need.

Seven Contest For Miss UNCP Crown

Pembroke -- The new Miss UNCP for 1997 will be crowned Nov. 20 during "An Evening of Magic" at the Givens Performing Arts Center. The pageant begins at 8 P.M. and admission is free to students and children under 10, and $3 for the general public.

Five freshmen and two sophomores are vying for the crown that will be relinquished by Miss Lisa Michelle Mitchell, a sophomore from Rowland.

Magician John Tudor will be the master of ceremonies. The "Magic of John Tudor" is an upbeat, high energy stage show featuring state-of-the-art magic, audience participation, wholesome comedy, large-scale illusions and theatrics. He has performed in films and on TV including PM Magazine and The Discovery Channel.

Mr. Tudor has connections to Robeson County and UNC Pembroke. He is the great grandson of Col. Hamilton McMillan, who is often called the founder of UNCP because, as a state representative, he authorized the bill that funded Croatan Normal School in 1887.

Miss Janna Marie Sampson, the Charlotte recording artist whose hit "What I am to You" recently climbed to #38 on the R & R Rhythmic charts, will provide musical entertainment. Born in Robeson County, Miss Sampson is the daughter of Jimmy and Olene Sampson. Mrs. Sampson serves on the Board of Directors for the UNCP Foundation, Inc.

Also providing entertainment will be the UNCP Black and Gold Dancers in their 1997-98 debut performance. Contestants are:

Miss Tresa Davette Suarez - a freshman from Fayetteville who intends to major in biology. Her parents are David and Jerl Suarez.

Miss Athena Kaulana Salwolke - a freshman from Fayetteville. She is the daughter of Ross and Cathy Salwolke.

Miss Athena Gail Locklear - a sophomore from Pembroke who intends to major in computer science. Her parents are Tommy and Della Locklear.

Miss Mary Beth Hancock - a freshman from Sanford, N.C. who intends to major in mass communications. She is the daughter of Diane Hancock.

Miss Veronica Leigh Hatton - a freshman from Cary, N.C. who intends to become a special education teacher. Her parents are Carroll Hatton and Mick Mathews.

Miss Jennifer Marie Gwarek - a freshman from Fayetteville who intends to concentrate in broadcasting while majoring in mass communications. She is the daughter of Holly Gwarek.

Miss Hica Rosario-Casado - a sophomore from Fayetteville who intends to major in criminal justice. Her parents are John and Lisa Gilmore.

The pageant is sponsored by UNCP's Office of Student Affairs.
